3 held in pizza robbery

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A Detroit mother, her juvenile son and an adult friend were arrested in Romulus Thursday, after they teamed up to rob a Taylor pizza company manager of more than $1,000 in company receipts.

The 28-year-old manager of a Hungry Howie's restaurant in Taylor told Romulus police, she and an associate were about to make a bank deposit at the National Bank of Detroit overnight facility at 10421 Middlebelt Road shortly before 3 a.m. Thursday, when a man tried to steal the company money bag.

Her associate, a 19-year-old Romulus woman, reported the assailant ordered her to surrender the money bag, as she stepped out of the manager's truck, police reported.

The Romulus woman instead ran back to the truck and jumped on the rear bumper, in an effort to flee from the area, police said.

The assailant grabbed at the bag and actually ripped it open, police said, causing the paper money to scatter all over the parking lot.

As the bandit began to scoop up the money from the ground, the restaurant manager attempted to hit him with her truck, police were told. Then suddenly a second man approached the two women and pointed a gun at them in an effort to frighten them off.

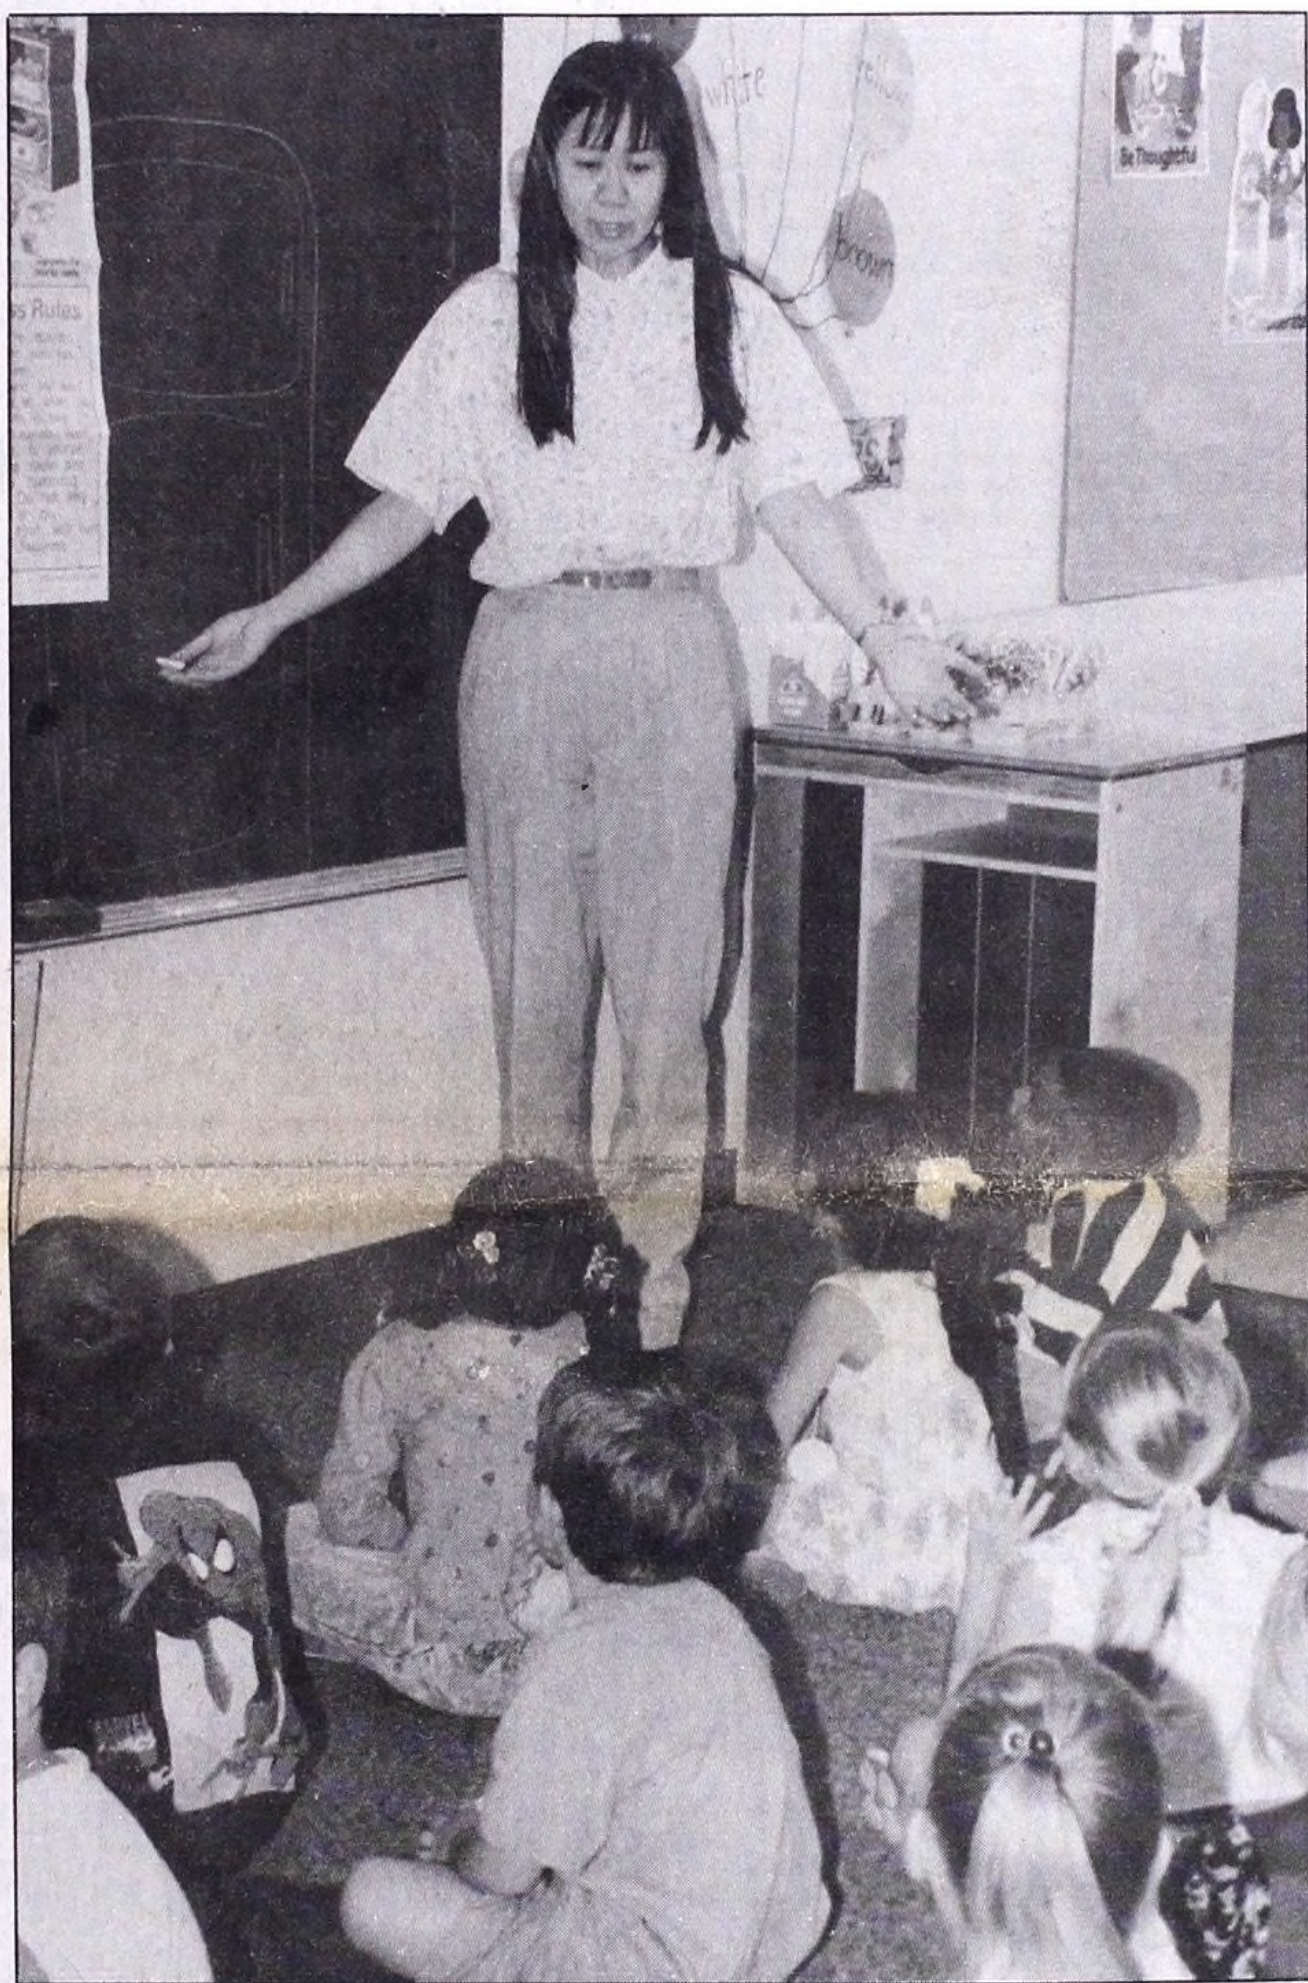

The two men fled with most of the cash into a nearby soggy, wooded area on Middlebelt Road. Romulus police authorities were then notified by the victims.

Romulus police and a Van Buren K-9 team were summoned to look for the pair in the wooded area.

The police dog was able to flush the pair out of the trees a short time later (one defendant was totally caked with mud) and they were taken into custody by the Romulus police.

Arrested were Maurice Jerry Tomby, 19, of Detroit; his friend, Darrell Anthony Lewis, 16, who flashed the gun (which later proved to be a plastic toy replica of a pistol) and the juvenile's mother, Dale Arlene Lewis, 34, of Detroit, who reportedly planned the robbery.

Most of the money was recovered by police.

School millage voting Tuesday

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A school district millage will be on the Romulus ballot next Tuesday asking voters to approve a unique package, a financial enhancement for the district and a tax cut for the homeowners.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and will close at 8 p.m.

School Board President Sandra Langley reported that the board decided to seek the millage change this summer, when it was revealed additional funds were needed to make up the $1.9 million in red ink that the district had accumulated in the past year or more.

The approval of Proposal A and changes in the state school aid formula have also caused various negative financial flows for the Romulus School District.

Some of the factors that have hurt the district financial picture include $700,000 for asbestos removal at the high school, $200,000 to $300,000 in district employee retirement fund and FICA payments and an additional $250,000 in special education costs allocated by the state, Langley said.

Part of that growing special education cost factor is attributed to the increasing number of adult group homes in Romulus, she said.

On Aug. 22 the Romulus School Board approved a resolution that would guarantee a 5-mill reduction in home owner tax costs if the 3-mill proposal is approved by voters next Tuesday.

The overall package would mean a 2-mill tax cut for homeowners and a 3-mill hike for business and industry, Langley said.

Superintendent Dr. William Bedell calls the millage a "win-win" opportunity for the school district and local homeowners.

Bedell said that industry was the biggest winner in the Proposal A victory and the current millage request would have them return some of those savings to the schools.

The current millage question covers only the next three years, 1994, 1995 and 1996 and will allow the school district needed time to determine its long term needs without immediately cutting program, etc., Langley said.

The shifting of tax millage plans will allow the district to gain an extra $860,000. In addition, Langley said, the school district has restricted the use of such money and will not allow it to be used for salary low it to be used for salary hikes or for hiring new personnel.

The funds will be used basically to help eliminate the district general fund deficit and to purchase software, staff computer training updates, school buses and maintenance upgrades.

Langley reported that the American Civil Liberties Union has refused to aid the local school district in its battle with the state Department of Education on changes in the "At Risk Student Funding" program.

Previously, the state provided $23 million for such students and Romulus Schools received its fair share, Langley said. But now that rate is jumping to $230 million statewide and Romulus Schools are getting zero percent, she complained, despite the fact that Romulus student needs are growing.

Langley and two of the board's newest members, Julie Oleszkowicz and Judie Gondek, met with the press on Monday to give final views on the Sept. 20 referendum.

Langley concluded by saying she was "glad the board was giving voters an opportunity to cut homeowners' millage rates, while at the same time providing the district with badly needed funds."

Oleszkowicz also expressed "happiness that the first millage campaign I have been called to work on will reduce homeowners' millages."

Gondek revealed in her concluding remarks "we (she and Oleszkowicz) agonized over our decision as we wanted to make sure it was the right thing for the community. We finally decided yes, feeling it truly was a tax reduction, not just a tax shift."

Stricken priest recovering

The Rev. Michael D. Malawy, ailing pastor of St. Aloysius Catholic Church, was released from the University of Michigan Hospitals last Thursday and has now begun a long convalescence period, a church spokeswoman said.

Malawy was stricken with a heart attack on July 23. The spokeswoman declined to reveal where Malawy has been transferred, but did admit that it is expected to be an extended recovery period.

Malawy's 13th anniversary of ordination will be next Monday.

Get well wishes still may be mailed to the church rectory, 11280 Ozga Road, Romulus, MI. 48174.

The Rev. Gerard Cupple of St. Theodore's Catholic Church of Westland has been named to fill in during Malawy's absence.

Police await letter tests

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

State Police test results on an inflammatory threatening note dropped off at the home of an anti-injection well activist and allegedly signed by the Ku Klux Klan are now being awaited by Huron Township Police.

Chief James Caygill said he has asked that interviews with potential suspects be delayed until those results are obtained.

"Usually it takes two to three weeks to obtain such information," he said, "but it is critical to the success of the investigation that we do things in the proper sequence."

Since the target of the message and an accompanying severed cat head was R.P. Lilly, spokesperson for a Romulus citizen group battling Environmental Disposal Services' plans to open the first commercial liquid injection well in the state, the incident has gained wide media attention.

Members of the citizens' group Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) alerted the media about 2 p.m. Sept. 6 of the delivery of the cat's head and note threatening the lives of Lilly's wife, Helena, and the couple's grandchildren.

Lilly reportedly found the "dry cat's head in a small white box sitting on the hood" of his wife's white auto shortly before 10 a.m. that day outside the couple's Huron Township home.

Helena Lilly said her husband went outside the house that morning in search of the family's recycling bin, when he spotted the box.

She said he suddenly called out, "It's started. C'mon and look at this."

"I thought something had happened to the clothes I had put on our (ceramic) goose outside," she continued, "I was not prepared for what I was about to see."

Lilly immediately called the Huron Township Police and turned over the animal's head and a "vulgar, racially tinged and threatening letter" to Officer John Cady. He then met with Police Chief Jim Caygill, who ordered special police protection for the Lilly home.

The letter was composed of cut-up words pasted on a sheet of paper stating "RP Lilly, we are tired of you wasting our tax money, so you can be a slum lord. You are nothing more than a nigger loving hypocrite."

"It's time to retire for health reasons. If you show up at another council or zoning board meeting, next time we will deliver your wife's or one of your grandchildren's heads. KKK," the note concluded.

While not pointing any finger directly at EDS management, Lilly said he felt the message was related to his family's aggressive actions against the injection well proposal in Romulus.

Lilly said police departments in towns where his

Man accused of armed robbery pleads guilty

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A Detroit man, who was charged with three counts of armed robbery of a Westland fast food restaurant, pleaded guilty to the charges before Detroit Recorder's Judge Bruce Morrow.

While Shaun Duvall Boyer, 29, is scheduled to be sentenced on the charges this week. The second suspect in the crime, Kurt Kevin Edwards, a 32-year-old Detroit resident, will appear before Judge Morrow Sept. 30 for a final conference. Boyer is being held on a $75,000 cash bond while Edwards bond was set at $100,000. Each robbery charge carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Boyer was accused of aiding and abetting by driving the getaway vehicle while Edwards is accused of robbing the store armed with a knife.

After the two allegedly fled from the McDonald's restaurant at 5235 S. Merriman Aug. 14, owner Roy Jason III foiled their plans by following them in his vehicle and notifying local police of the incident and the chase from his car phone.

Allen Park and Dearborn police stopped the driver of the 1987 blue two-door Chrysler automobile while traveling northbound on the Southfield, police said, after Jason, 46, followed them down the Interstate-94 freeway.

The incident occurred around 7:10 a.m. when the perpetrator walked into McDonald's, placed an order and then pulled out a 4-7/8-inch lock blade knife, police said.

When he instructed the cashier to "open the drawer and give me the money" while holding the knife over the counter, the frightened cashier ran to the back of the store and yelled for the owner, police said.

The robber then went around the counter and followed the woman toward the back of the store. Meanwhile, the cashier was met by Jason, who upon learning of the incident, instructed her to go downstairs while he approached the front of the store.

He was met by the robber who said, "I want all your money," and showed him the knife, according to police. The owner escorted the armed man to the front register where he was instructed to open the drawer and the robber grabbed an undisclosed amount of cash. The perpetrator then said, "I want the back cash," referring to the rear drive-through window register, police said. The owner opened that drawer and the robber took the cash. He then asked where the safe was and the owner led him to it, but was unable to open the safe because he did not have the key.

The angered assailant said, "C'mon you're going with me," and ordered the cashier and two witnesses who were standing near the fryers to get down on the ground with their faces down, according to police.

As he walked out, the robber used his knife to cut off three gold bracelets from the cashier's arm. He then walked the owner to the front counter and instructed him to get on the ground and cut the phone lines to both store phones, police said.

As the assailant walked out the north door of the building, Jason got up and saw a car pull through the drive-through area. According to police, the robber yelled, "C'mon, c'mon," hurriedly to the vehicle driver. After the robber got inside, the Chrysler drove off slowly southbound onto Merriman and Jason got in his car and pursued the two, police said.

Sentencing set in pizza delivery theft

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

He punched a pizza delivery man in the face and stole some $15 to $20 in cash after being told he couldn't have the pizza he ordered and now the 24-year-old Canton Township resident will spend one year in the Wayne Dickerson jail and receive drug rehabilitation treatment.

Andrew Glen Jamerson, who is being held on a $25,000 cash bond, pleaded guilty to unarmed robbery before Detroit Recorder's Judge Michael Sapala and is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 9.

Jamerson was charged in connection with the July 31 robbery of a Domino's Pizza delivery man outside a Westland home located on the 6100 block of N. Wildwood, according to Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe.

The incident occurred after the defendant and another man entered Domino's Pizza, located at 6030 N. Wayne Road in Westland, and the defendant attempted to purchase pizza with a check. However, the robber could not produce proper identification and was denied the purchase.

The two men left and minutes later, according to police, the assailant's companion called the pizza store and ordered $14.20 worth of pizza to be delivered to the companion's home, according to police reports.

Jamerson greeted a 20-year-old delivery man at the front door of the home and again attempted to pay with a check.

The victim told the man he could not accept a check and the robber asked if the delivery man could make change for a $50 bill. He again responded "no" and began to walk back to his vehicle with the pizza, police said, and the defendant followed asking if he had change for a $20.

When the driver said "yes" and began to take out $15 to $20 worth of change the defendant said, "you don't know who you're ---ing with," and punched the victim in the mouth, according to reports. The robber then took the money and fled northwest on foot.

The driver reported the crime when he returned to the pizzeria and police later located the assailant standing outside the Old Country Buffet, located at 6535 N. Wayne road in Westland.

Police brought Jamerson back to Domino's where the delivery man identified him as the man who robbed him, reports said.

During preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court, Jamerson's attorney, Robert Simmons, said his client was intoxicated at the time of the incident and was acting out of anger because the driver wouldn't accept his check.

Simmons request for bond reduction was denied after Wayne County Prosecutor Thomas Trzcinski revealed that Jamerson has a criminal history and aliases in another state and was on probation for burglary when the incident occurred.

A $60,000 grant to help the city demolish and clear 10 abandoned structures located near Romulus schools has been approved for Romulus, 22nd District State Representative Gregory Pitoniak reported today.

The intent behind the demolition grants, Pitoniak said, is to remove potentially hazardous structures in which inappropriate behavior (such as drug trafficking) could occur.

"We need to reduce both violence and its chance to occur in our cities," Pitoniak said, "and this grant should help these efforts. I am pleased that Romulus was among the 67 recipients of these grants that totaled more than $2.5 million statewide."

It is expected that 522 structures will be removed from Michigan through this program.

School busing system slashed

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Unable to collect any funds from a successful fall millage election this year, Wayne-Westland School Board members voted to rescind the motion for a previously approved election and began balancing the budget by cutting secondary transportation.

Secondary bussing, scheduled to be eliminated Oct. 24, is just one of the several cuts made in an attempt to balance a budget which has fallen short $1.9 million.

Other cuts made by the Board of Education include the elimination of secondary parking lot security, approximately six vocational education teaching assistants, the adult education evening program, a $50,000 reduction in the building supplies, 15 central office receptionist positions and the administrative positions of coordinator of adult and community education and curriculum director.

The cuts made add up to $1.2 million, leaving the district approximately $750,000 in debt. Board members agreed to wait for the fourth Friday pupil count, which will determine the amount of state funding per pupil they will receive, before making any further cuts.

The expected pupil count is 15,500 and as of the first Friday the count was short approximately 200 students.

However, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas said, "That's not unusual. The population will increase each week."

The majority of board members could not agree on the separate cuts of transportation, 15 central office receptionists and the remainder of cuts, so the board voted on each of the three major issues. With Board member Francis Winter absent, the remaining board members supported cutting the administrative positions, adult education, security, vocational assistants and building supplies, saving the district $435,000.

Board Vice President Richard LeBlanc was against the central office cuts, which saved the district $45,000, and Board Treasurer Patricia Brown voted against the secondary transportation cuts which cut approximately $750,000 from the budget.

Several other cost cutting proposals were made, but all failed for a lack of majority support.

Thomas said his job will now be to notify the state that the board has failed to balance the district budget, but plans to do so after receiving the fourth Friday count.

According to Thomas, he doesn't expect the state to step in and take control of the budget balancing process unless the board fails to cut the remaining $750,000 following the Nov. 1 student count.

"The board must balance the budget or the state will come in after Nov. 1," Thomas said.

The transportation cuts will effect approximately 2,500 students, officials said. Officials have not yet determined the number of transportation workers who will be laid off as a result of the cuts.

The vocational education program will also suffer "tremendously," according to Greg Baracy, assistant superintendent to general administration.

"Last year they cut about half of them," Baracy said, adding that the six positions would amount to nearly another half of the group.

"There's a certain amount of supervision necessary in teaching these types of programs. Some programs can't survive without teaching assistants," Baracy said.

Baracy added that the evening adult education program would effect some 200 students who, more than likely, would be unable to attend classes during the day.

"We can try to transfer them into a day program, however, we know in many cases it's not possible," Baracy said.

Board Secretary Vicki Welty said she would like to take the time between cuts to lobby for the change of a portion of the state school code which denies districts the right to charge for transportation services.

"We got money for it (from the state) before. That's not what's happening today. I would like the board to mount a campaign to change the (state) school code," Welty said.

Welty said charging parents a nominal fee for transportation would be better than eliminating it altogether and having a private service come in and charge them.

"It doesn't make sense to lay off bus drivers and then hire a private company and (have parents) pay them," Welty said, adding that concerned citizens and board members should write state legislators about the idea. "I'd like each of you to think about that. This is something that we can do."

Thomas recommended that board members rescind a recent resolution to conduct a millage election this fall asking for 3 mills over a two-year period because any gain from that election could not be used until the 1995-96 school year. Instead, Thomas said, he plans to recommend the board seek a millage increase in the spring of 1995.

Public hearings slated on Oct. 3

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Two public hearings are slated on Oct. 3 for businesses asking the Romulus City Council for industrial facility exemption certificates.

The first of the hearings is slated for the Detroit Tarpaulin Inc. with operations located at 15500 Oakwood Drive. The hearing will begin at 6:45 p.m. in 34th District Court Judge Felix Rogalle's court room.

In its application Detroit Tarpaulin stated that 20 new jobs will be created as it creates a $775,000 addition to its current building and $25,000 in land improvements.

Detroit Tarpaulin proposes to create large tarpaulins for bridge construction at the new facility.

The second hearing of the night will begin at 7 p.m. for Oakite Products at 13177 Huron River Drive. Oakite Products plans to construct a $2.3 million addition and add $190,000 in land improvements and $985,000 in personal property upgrades. The firm plans to produce specialty chemical products at the facility.

In an unrelated action, the City Council voted to approve such a exemption certificate for Lear Seating Corp. at 36310.

The City Council in accordance with Mayor Beverly McNally's recommendation approved a six-year tax abatement on a $1.4 million expansion plan for Lear Seating. The plan calls for a 13,000 square foot addition for extra storage and sequencing of materials. The company said the addition will not include plans for creation of any new jobs.

The City Council also voted to send a proposed sidewalk construction delay agreement with General Motors and its property on Ecorse Road back to the Department of Building, Safety and Engineering for further review, cost analysis and recommendations.

General Motors representatives urged a delay in sidewalk construction, pending a decision on possible culvert work at that location. City Council members however favor sidewalk construction as soon as possible as stated in the city sidewalk ordinance.

2 guilty of murder

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A Detroit pair have been convicted of second degree murder in connection with the brutal beating death of Romulus resident William Mancine.

Recorders Court Judge Wendy Baxter ruled on Sept. 8 that Lee Gruber, 29, formerly of Belleville, and Kelly Gorsline, 26, were guilty of killing Mancine in his girlfriend's apartment in Flat Rock on Nov. 20, 1993.

Mancine reportedly died of the injuries at Seaway Hospital in Trenton about a half hour after the beating.

Gorsline also was found guilty of aggravated assault. Baxter set Sept. 26 as the sentencing date.

grandchildren reside also have been alerted.

Douglas Wicklund, EDS president, declared "we are appalled by this incident and the cruelty involved. We are saddened by this latest example of how far people are willing to go in order to further their point of view."

John Ryznar, owner of the property the deepwell is currently located on, also said he was shocked by the incident. "We have grandchildren too," a Ryznar family spokeswoman said, "and we to are opposed to any such conduct."

Caygill revealed that the letter had been sent to the Michigan State Police lab in Northville for tests. His department also notified the local office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the incident.

Despite the threat, Lilly attended the Tuesday night council meeting and said his family had taken abuse in stride earlier (such as carpenter tacks in his drive-way etc), but called the latest incident "the ultimate in low life tactics."

While Lilly said he had no idea who would pull such a stunt, he asked Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks if he could read the contents of the letter to the public. Banks agreed, but said since "this is still a public meeting, I would urge you to edit out the profanity."

After reading the letter, Lilly stressed to the unknown senders, "You have not deterred my actions...in fact they will only get stronger."

Long time citizen activist and former council candidate Mary Collins rose to condemn the actions.

Speaking in tones that continually broke with emotion, Collins said she "was emotionally upset that something like this could happen here."

"I've had my character assassinated in political campaigns in the past, but even I have never suffered as severely as Mr. and Mrs. Lilly did today," Collins continued.

"We (RECAP members) are all family and when you attack one of us, you attack all of us," she said in trembling tones.

Another RECAP member Ramona Underwood told the council, "I now feel obligated to stand up and talk. I was a very quiet person for many years, but those days are over. We need to continue to stress the truth about this well issue."

Youth rally slated

Casino gambling not a sure bet, reporter states

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

As a former anti-casino activist on the New Jersey scene in the 1970s, I do not look upon area casinos as becoming any type of economic savior for Detroit or Romulus.

I remember the days when casino talk was just beginning throughout New Jersey and I began asking serious questions of its promoters. Just as in most other issues that create division in a community, I found many casino supporters preferred to deflect the issue to something milder.

Both in and out of the news office (and I must admit the anti-casino forces were in the minority in the media) casino-backers were stressing the famous vocal and comic talent that would be brought to Atlantic City at the time.

We (the anti-casino forces) were stressing the fact that casinos also would bring other more unwelcome visitors, namely money lenders, strong-arm pay back enforcers and the infamous hookers.

We warned also where such large amounts of money were flourishing, political crimes and corruption also would flourish.

The anti-casino forces also brought in Reno and Las Vegas officials, who asked New Jersey residents, "Why would you want casinos? You have manufacturing, heavy commercial businesses, agriculture, coast-line shipping businesses, airports, major utilities and many tourist attractions already located here. We had none of those, thus we opted for the casinos in our desert areas."

We were also warned that casinos close to major population areas would create big problems as residents try "to buy their ways out of the ghetto, but instead dig themselves deeper into them."

The anti-casino forces also at that time received great support from the Atlantic County law enforcement authorities and the Atlantic City police.

We won that first round, just as such forces won repeatedly in Detroit until this year. But the casino-backers quickly came back with what became branded as the "big lie" as they stated that "much of the money earned here will go to help the handicapped and senior citizens." After the referendum the amount turned out to be "one half of one percent of casino earnings."

Suddenly and mysteriously, law enforcement officials in Atlantic County switched sides on the casino issue, leading many to question how such a dramatic turn could occur in only a year.

Massive television and newspaper ads appeared and local politicians throughout the state began touting the tax savings casinos were going to bring local homeowners.

Homeowners in any state, and New Jersey proved no different, want to believe any claim that taxes would diminish. Jersey residents fell for the lower taxes claim and many joined the Atlantic law enforcement forces and switched sides on the issue.

New Jersey got the casinos and became the prime alternate casino location outside of Nevada for the lucrative East Coast financial market.

About a decade later I checked with my brother, Rich, who still resides in New Jersey. I jokingly asked him, "You now have had casinos for a decade, you also have stolen the Giants and Jets from New York, you have horse racing, major wrestling events and a wide assortment of lotteries. I ask you how much have your taxes gone down?"

He smiled back and declared "Al, you know what's going on. Our taxes are still out of control."

Since then an Atlantic City mayor has landed in jail and most recently with Jersey Gov. Jim Florio was voted out of office because of high taxes.

One of my sisters-in-law opened a half-way house in Atlantic City in the 1980s to care for teen-age prostitutes, who she found sleeping under the boardwalk at night and helped them return home or to some other support system. One of her group's biggest financial supporters were the casinos themselves, lending strong backing to the belief that such problems were increasing.

Since Atlantic City use to be one of the prime family tourist attractions in New Jersey (many now go to Seaside Heights, Asbury Park, etc., if they want to join in the sand and surf adventures), we continue to ask if the casinos have added as much to New Jersey as the public expected.

Obviously, they have not added much to counter the city's blight and crime problems, as can be evidenced when visitors travel only eight to 10 blocks from the glitter of the casinos.

The one promise made in Detroit that may prove true is that more of the U.S. gambling dollar may remain in the Metro area if casinos open in the area.

But, the more important question is "at what cost?"

Editor's note: Readers who wish to express their opinions on the proposals for casino gambling in the Detroit area, may submit a letter to the editor. All letters must be signed, but names may be withheld by request.

Residents take sides on casino gambling issue

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

A sampling of western Wayne County residents last week revealed mixed feelings on the casino gambling issue.

Some of those interviewed supported the proposal to establish Indian-operated gambling casinos in Greektown, while other expressed fears that increased crime might negate any benefits from the gambling operation.

Several individuals declined to comment on the gambling issue because they "were not interested" in it, or "not interested in what happens in Detroit."

One local man, with tongue in cheek, replied that he thought we should legalize all vices and, thereby, eliminate all crime.

For the present, the issue is on the "back burner" after Gov. John Engler squelched any quick action on the casinos and established a committee to study the issue.

Engler raises several questions, which he hopes the in-depth study will provide answers. For example, would an Indian-operated casino in Greektown open the doors for other off-reservation gambling sites for Indian tribes, should private developers be given an equal opportunity to operate casinos and what repercussions would casino gambling have on other gambling ventures, such as the state-operated Lotto and horse racing?

"I know the governor is not for casino gambling now, but I think we should give it a try. A lot of people go to Windsor to gamble and we're losing dollars to Canada. We need the money here," said Manuela Fowler of Romulus.

"Yes. Detroit needs the money that the casinos would provide," said Geraldine Watson of Westland.

"It would help the economy," said Ray Gardner of Wayne. "It would be good for the economy and provide jobs. I think it would benefit everybody."

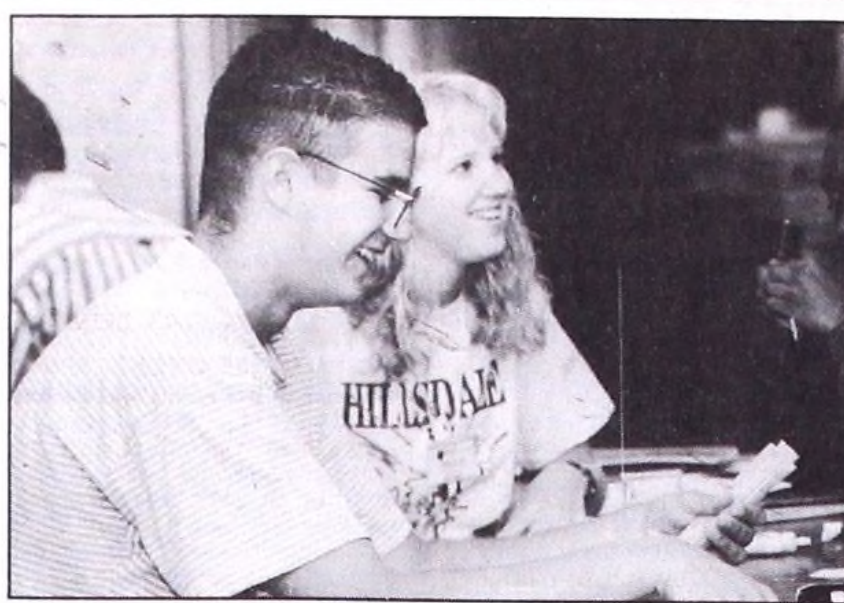

"No. There are enough problems and crime in Detroit," said Veronica Bell of Wayne. "I think casino gambling might create more problems than it is worth."

Regina Young of Romulus is against casino gambling because of the potential for an increase in crime.

"No. There are enough problems already without casino gambling," Young said.

Westland resident Rick Romej prefers the Lotto to casinos.

"No. I don't care for casino gambling. I'll stick with the Lotto," Romej said when interviewed last week.

Hundreds of local residents turned out to be vaccinated against contagious diseases at three free clinics offered by Oakwood Health Services and Wayne County at Wayne-Westland Schools Timothy Dyer Center.

The free clinics were offered to encourage Wayne-Westland School District parents to have their children immunized before the start of school Aug. 31.

"People will give you a hundred million different reasons why they haven't got their children immunized. For financial reasons, it's hard to get in because of their work schedules or they just don't like going to hospitals," said Karen Battle, director of patient care services at Annapolis Hospital-Westland Center.

So the clinics were offered at the school administration office until 8 p.m. on various evenings and some 600 students received immunizations.

More than 100 volunteers from Oakwood Hospitals participated in the program and Wayne County provided all of the serums.

Opinion

A necessary evil

Next Tuesday, voters in the Romulus school district will be asked to vote for a millage increase to reduce their taxes.

Sound confusing. It is. But the proposal, carefully described as an enhancement millage, will ask for an increase of 3 mills on all property in the city, including industrial and commercial for three years—until 1996.

The members of the board of education have protected the present tax base by voting to reduce taxes on home owners by 5 mills if the 3 mill question is approved. That means, if the voters approve a 3 mill increase, they will actually receive a 2 mill reduction on residential property.

Who loses? Nobody, really. Industry and business in the district will find a 3 mill increase on the taxes, but with the recent change in school finance laws, that may be offset in most cases by the reduction.

We are also impressed with the promise of the school board to restrict the use of the funds to the general fund of the district and the vow not to use the money to fund salaries or hire new personnel. That seems to indicate that the funding will, in fact, be used to offset the general fund deficit and to purchase software, training, buses and maintenance.

While we are never in favor of increasing the tax burden of the already overburdened and beleaguered businesses, the effect of this measure would seem to be responsive to the needs of the schools and not present an undue hardship on business and industry.

While we are strongly against this type of measure in principle—we believe the circumstances alter the situation, and we would support this one-time, limited proposal in an effort to fund the outstanding educational opportunities offered in the Romulus district.

No one can question the quality of education offered students there or criticize the financial management of the district to date. We have every confidence that this money will be used in the most efficient manner possible for the education of the district students.

We urge voters to support this question with a yes vote on Tuesday.

Casinos require study

We agree with Governor John Engler's decision to further study the issue of casino gambling before making a decision on its merits for the Detroit area.

Engler is appointing a gaming commission to evaluate the Greektown proposal which was recently approved by U.S. Department of Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt. After the state commission studies the casino proposal, which is said to include several changes from the original document, the governor will issue his opinion.

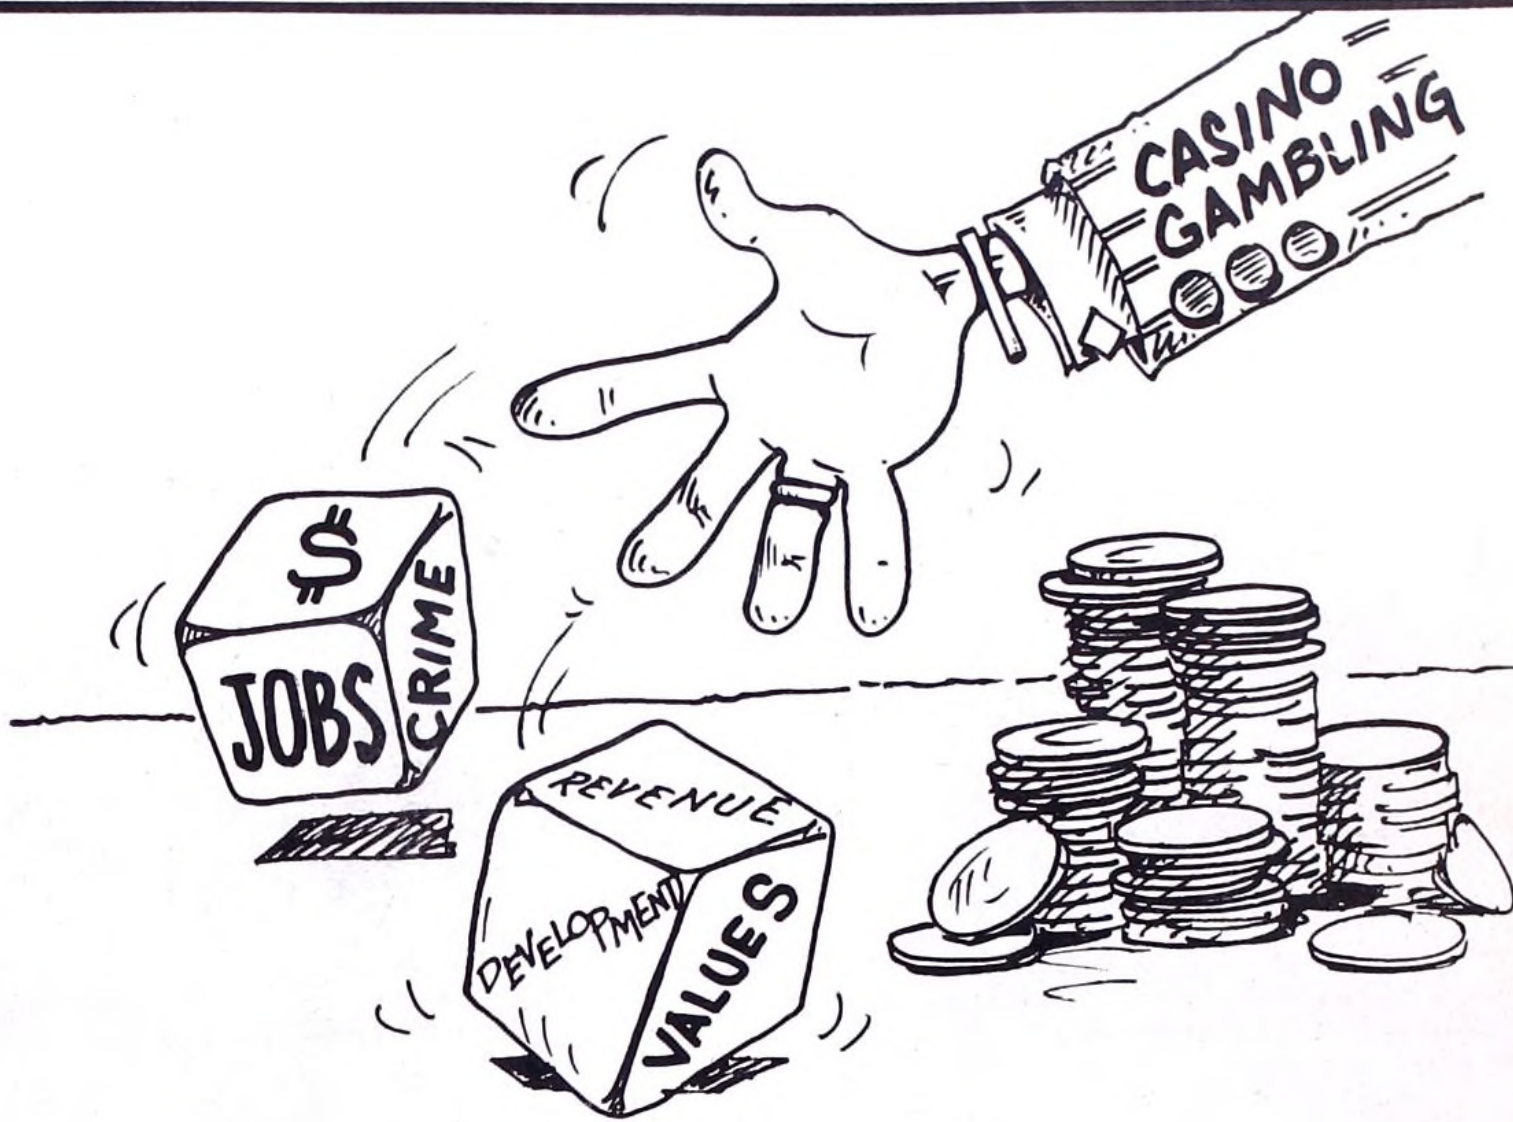

One of the concerns expressed by the governor is one that is troubling to many state residents. Engler has been opposed to off-reservation gaming and has expressed his concern that a precedent could be established if the Greektown site is approved.

Could the approval of an Indian-operated casino in Greektown lead to a proliferation of casinos in other Michigan cities? What measures would prevent other tribes from buying a piece of tribal land anywhere in the state, and establishing a casino on it?

Should casino gambling be a Native American venture, or an equal opportunity business for those with experience and expertise in operating gaming facilities?

As we recall, gambling on the reservations has been hailed as a boom to the economy of the economically depressed homelands of Native Americans. The gambling casinos, located on Indian-owned land in the several Michigan communities, were established to provide employment opportunities for members of the tribes and also to earn lucrative profits from the operation itself - both vital to the economic well-being of the Indian population.

We agree with the original concept of reservation casinos, but we are hesitant to support off-reservation gaming. It seems to us to be circumventing the purpose and intent of the concept.

Victim sends message to vandals

To the editor:

This is an open letter to the person or persons who were involved in the vandalism of my duplex in the early morning hours of Sept. 3.

First, I want you to know that you failed in your attempt to hurt us. I know that God was watching over my family that night because I have no other explanation as to why we were not seriously hurt.

Second, I want you to know that because of your heartless actions, you almost killed my eight-year-old daughter. I know that she may not mean anything to someone like you, but to me she is my reason for living. If you had succeeded in killing her, you would have also killed me.

I had just fallen asleep in my bed with my little girl next to me when I heard a crash in the second-story window of my duplex that woke me up. It took me a couple of minutes to realize what had happened. There was broken glass all over my bedroom floor and on my bed. I got up and went outside but saw no one. I was checking out my front yard when I found the object that you used to break my window. It was a large, round metal object. I got weak in the knees when I felt how heavy it was! The only reason that the object didn't penetrate my window and strike my sleeping daughter on her head was the fact that the object bounced off of my screen. You did, however, hit my window with enough force to propel shards of broken glass all over us. I got a cut lip and arm. My daughter was unharmed. I used to feel safe on my street but now I will not be able to sleep at night knowing you are out there still. I now have my neighbors watching my home and I have warned them about you so they are keeping an eye out for you.

I hope you think twice before you decide to vandalize property. Think about the precious child that may be on the other side of any window that you may break. Children do not deserve to be killed in their sleep by the likes of people such as you. I hope that now perhaps you will be the person who cannot sleep at night because of guilt. The world should be safe for all of us. Especially for sleeping little girls.

Servicemen sought for reunion

To the editor:

I am trying to locate men I had served with in the Navy between Dec. 27, 1941 to July 10, 1961. Many of these men, I can trace through military publications, but for others who served after the war periods, I cannot obtain their addresses.

I am trying to reach them this way. The following ships are not in the U.S. Navy any longer. Either they were sold to a foreign government, or (were scrapped) and we are shaving with razor blades made from them. I am still trying to find others who may want to meet their old friends and have lost track of them. Some of these ships were still in service up to 1983.

I turned 70 years of age, five months ago. My age is catching up with me. I organize reunions for pleasure, not money. As I cannot drive any distance, it is easier to do so. And save some of my money, as dollars don't go too far. I hold the reunions, to keep myself busy.

I don't expect calls before 9 p.m., as I cannot afford to return phone calls. The reunions will be held June, July, August, 1995. I have to work around the Michigan International Speedway. I won't have dates until later this year for next year. Then I will have room rates and cost of buffet-style banquet, which cost less, and you get all you want to eat.

For this reunion, ships are listed as follows: USS Stormes DD-780, USS Dickman DD-708, USS Warrington DD-843, USS Vogelgesang DD-862, USS Steiner DD-863, USS Grand Canyon AD-28-AR-28.

Name and addresses can be sent to:

the 1990s - things have changed.

Today, corporate America is downsizing across the board and in a big way. Our largest industries have literally been "hollowed out." Additionally, the advent of the computer has decimated the ranks of white collar and middle management workers. Production of value added "hard" goods is increasingly being moved off shore. The number of "good" jobs is actually shrinking for the first time in this century.

Our political leaders somewhat cynically are urging people to "acquire more skills," and to be "flexible" and expect to "change jobs frequently."

In the abstract it is obvious; that skills do count - but in the real world, something else counts for more - namely job growth. Job growth not education is the thing we "should" be watching. It can not be ignored for long.

The service sector is providing most of the job growth in this country. So if you are willing to work for low wages in a restaurant, retail store or hospital, this economy is truly a lean, mean job creating machine.

However, in the new service economy many college graduates are deemed to be "over-qualified!" In the new economy truck drivers will be in greater demand than lawyers. Many lawyers may in fact become truck drivers!

For better or worse the United States is going to be the first "post-industrial" economy. What kind of society and economy it will evolve into is still unknown. But one thing is clear - a key era in our history is coming to an end.

Belleville 36, Dearborn Fordson 7

A football game that will go down in Tiger sports history

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville High football fans should circle Friday, September 9, 1994 as the day that will go down in history.

On that day and date, coach Bob LaPointe and the Tigers beat Dearborn Fordson, 36-7, for their first-ever victory over the Tractors who just happen to be the defending Class AA state champs and one of the pre-season picks to repeat as the Mega Conference Red Division champs.

The victory also was heard across the area and state, sending a resounding message to all, that the 1994 Tigers are for real.

"It was a great victory for us," said Belleville coach Bob LaPointe, a sophomore coach who coaching stints include stops at Dearborn Divine Child and Eastern Michigan University. "These kids deserve all of the credit."

LaPointe was quick to note that the team will not be able to sit on its laurels, "because, now, everyone will be gunning for us. It's the nature of the game and the beast.

"Knock off the No. 1 team and the rest of the pack wants you."

But for the moment, the Tigers are living it up.

Just like they did in the third quarter against the visiting Tractors. With the game tied at 7-all after the first half, Belleville's defense suddenly went wild and exploded Fordson image. The defense crushed Fordson, causing four fumbles that led to two Belleville touchdowns.

In fact, Belleville's offense was on the sidelines most of the third quarter as the defense scored three touchdowns - and when have Belleville fans ever seen that happen.

"Our offense ran only nine plays for the entire third quarter," LaPointe said.

Belleville broke the 7-7 deadlock early in the third quarter when 6-2, 210-pound outside linebacker Jason Gold crashed into the Fordson ball-carrier and forced a fumble which was scooped up by Rodney Komaromi. Komaromi raced 45 yards for the TD.

That gave Belleville a 13-7 lead.

Then, after the ensuing kickoff and, in their first series of plays, Fordson again turned the ball over. This time it was Jeremy Gold, Jason's twin brother, who provided the heroics. He stripped the ball away and teammate Joe Manuel was right there to hustle it in.

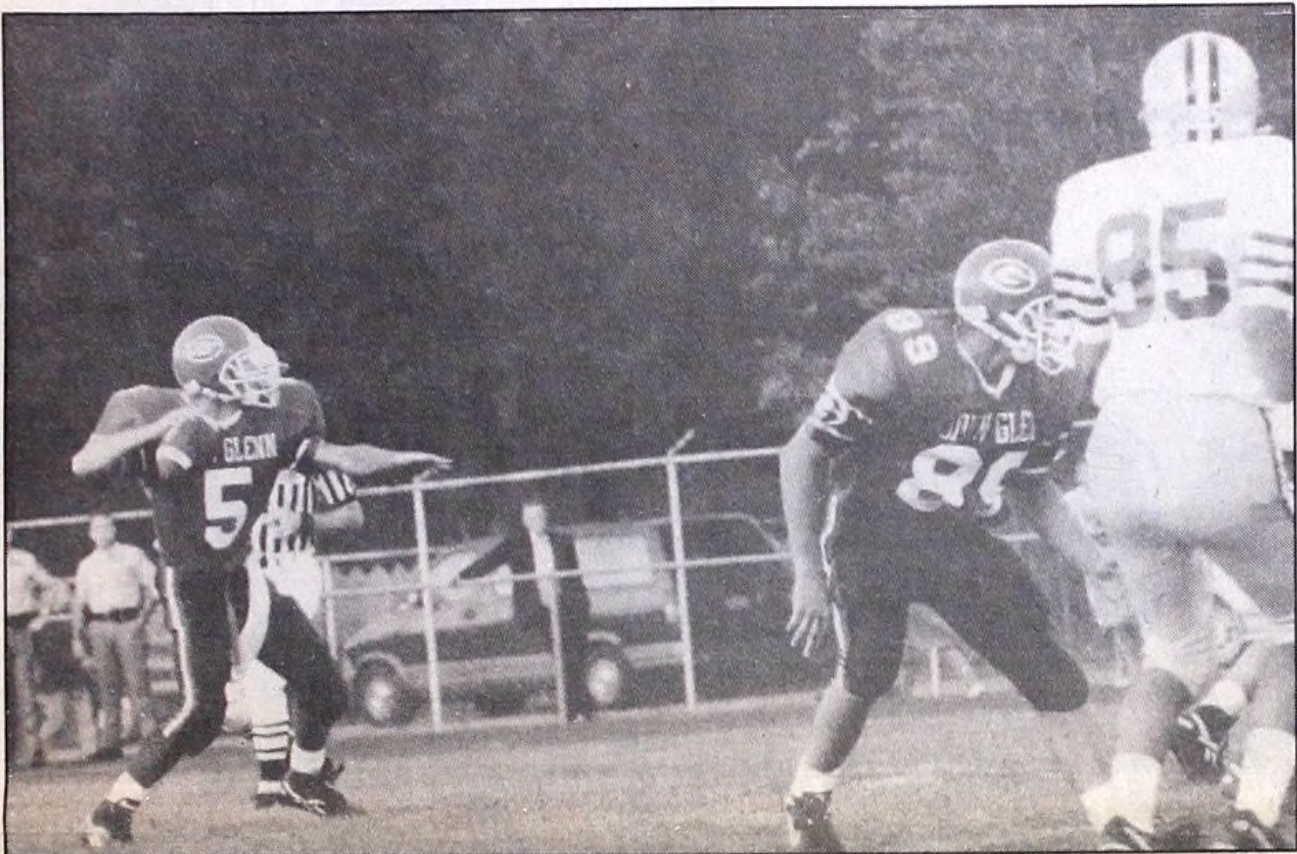

Manuel raced ran 67 yards down for the touchdown to make it a 20-7 game and, if Fordson didn't see the handwriting on the wall, they must have seen something after giving up a safety in their next possession.

Belleville put Fordson away for good when the Tractors kicked off and Ian Gold - yes, yet another brother - came back with a spectacular 58-yard TD return that gave the hosts a 29-7 advantage.

Fordson's only tally came on an Ali Saad run of 10 yards on the Tractors' first possession of

Rockets are still in search of victory

Westland John Glenn continues its search for a victory and itself after a 28-10 loss Friday night at home to Farmington Hills Harrison.

Coach Chuck Gordon and the Rockets are back again on the home turf Friday night, hosting a strong North Farmington, which is coming to Glenn after handing Plymouth-Canton their second consecutive loss, 10-7.

Glenn needs a victory to lift them out of the doldrums of an 0-2 start, and North, one of the title contenders in the Western Lakes Division, will not be an easy opponent for the rebuilding Rockets.

Harrison got on the scoreboard early as the Hawks drove 64 yards in 14 plays and scored on a Nick Williams' one-yarder.

Glenn however managed to answer before the half with a drive that took them inside the Harrison 20.

Wayne survives overtime

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It appears Wayne Memorial is not as invincible as the Zebras may think.

And the awakening came - or should have - Friday night.

The Zebras showed signs of weakness against an unheralded Taylor Kennedy team that gave the Mega Conference Red Division title hopeful a scare before the Wayne home crowd.

Thanks to an interception by safety Richard Rashad and senior tailback Stan Stevenson's touchdown run in overtime, Wayne pulled out their second win in as many weeks, 21-14.

But with and improved Lincoln Park coming to town Friday night, Wayne coach Chuck Howton and his staff have some problem-solving on their hands.

"We did not play tough as we did against Adrian," said Howton. "Against L.P., we're going to have to play a lot better and a lot tougher. Believe me, we're in a dogfight."

Against Kennedy blew a 14-0 lead before they came back.

The Zebras were up 7-0 late in the first quarter as quarterback Lorenzo Guess combined with tight end Aaron Bates on a 18-yard strike that culminated a midfield drive.

Then Bates kicked the extra point, giving Wayne a 7-0 advantage and the Zebras appeared well on its way to an easy win.

The hosts added to their lead when John Bohnwagner came up with a 69-yard punt return for his first touchdown of the season. The key block that sprung Bohnwagner loose was provided by Jeff Andrews. And Bates again came through with the point-after.

Now up by 14-0, Wayne suddenly saw the proverbial roof, if not fall, crack. Kennedy made a dramatic comeback in the second quarter with a pair of touchdowns thanks to tailback Dana Mitchell, who scored the first from 64-yards out on an option and then came back with 39 seconds left with an up-the-middle run that ended with a 31-yard TD sprint.

There was not scoring in the second half, which forced the issue into an extra period.

Kennedy got the first shot at the goal line and on a third down and five situation went to the air and Rashad was waiting. He picked off the pass - his fourth interception in two games.

On their first play from scrimmage, Guess handed off to Stevenson and he knew what to do - and did it.

Stevenson finished with 144 yards rushing on 24 attempts, and Guess completed five of 16 passes for 75 yards. On the line, Wayne received excellent blocking from Corey McClelland and Tim Gilanis, while Scott Wetmore, Bohnwagner, Mike Kennedy, Josh Waugh, Nick Nyschick and Rashad carried their weight on defense.

Salem 'touches ball 4 times and scores 3 touchdowns'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

If the rest of the football year season goes as well as it did for Plymouth-Salem coach Tom Moshimer and the Rocks in the third period against Northville, you won't hear the Rocks complaining.

The first four-times Salem had possession of the ball in the second half, the Rocks cashed them in for three touchdowns. The outburst helped Salem put Northville away 35-17 and gave the Rocks (1-1) their first victory of the 1994 season.

"It was the fastest three TDs any of my teams have scored, I believe," said Moshimer, who has been head coach at Salem for the past 28 years. "It really was something."

Down 10-7 after the initial half, the tide changed for Salem early in the third quarter when Rock tailback Mike Brannan scored off of a power play and went in from 33 yards out.

Mike Kley then kicked the extra point, his second of five successful boots for the evening.

Then, after the ensuing kickoff, Salem's defense got into the scoring act as tackle Rockland

Johnson bolted pass the Colts' line and got to the quarterback as he was preparing to put the ball in orbit. Johnson intercepted the ball and ran it in from the three.

Again, the Rocks kicked off to Northville, which may have thought the ball was a hot potato and quickly gave it back via a punt. Brannan took it and ran it back to the 19. On the first play from scrimmage, the speedy tailback scored from the 19.

"I think I was as surprised as Northville was at how things went out there," Moshimer said. "Believe me, it's been a long time since I have seen anything like it."

Salem also scored on a 69-yard power play as junior tailback Ashraf Toussef picked up his first touchdown of the season.

Brannan had an excellent night as he rushed for 144 yards and three TDs. On defense, Johnson and outside linebackers David Bracht and William Brooks led the charge. While in the secondary, Dan McKian and Toussef stood out.

The Rocks will play their first Saturday afternoon game of the 1994 season as they travel to Farmington for a 1 p.m. encounter. Farmington will put a 2-0 record on the block.

Last play TD saves day for Robichaud, 18-12

Bulldogs open SAC at Ecorse

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Final 18 seconds. Last drive. And two teams tied at 12-all.

That's the script. And it was up to Robichaud quarterback Matt Alexander to write the final chapter to a high school football drama being played out on Robichaud's gridiron Friday afternoon before a home crowd.

And the senior signal-call didn't fail. He picked tight end Brett Kubitz for the starring role and teamed up with him on an over-the-middle pass that Kubitz hauled in and raced 59-yards for the tie-breaking and winning touchdown.

"The play was perfectly executed," said Robichaud coach Bob Yauck after his team posted their first win of the young season, 18-12, at the expense of an outstanding Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher club.

"Alexander dropped back into the pocket and was right on target with his pass, and Brett took it from there."

But it should not have gotten down to a last-play situation, according to the Robichaud coach.

"We were up by two touchdowns at the half and let them come back on us. We blew a 12-0 lead."

Like a tornado picking up rooftops, the Bulldogs brushed Gallagher's defense aside right with ease from the beginning series and marched with the opening kickoff 70 yards.

However, once inside the visitors 15 the storm appeared to die. After forcing Gallagher to kick and getting the ball at

Inkster taught a lesson, 6-0

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster was taught a crucial lesson of football life Friday before its home crowd, and that is you can't live on defense alone.

And doing the teaching was none other than Suburban Athletic Conference rival River Rouge.

Although coach Vic Calhoun's Vikings turned in another sterling performance on defense, it wasn't enough to stop River Rouge which handed Inkster a 6-0 setback in the opening game of the 1994 SAC campaign.

"We have no excuses for this loss," said Calhoun, whose team will take a 1-1 overall record up against visiting Willow Run Friday afternoon. "We had ample opportunities to get on the board, but our receivers didn't hang on to the ball."

Maybe coach you should try some gum or glue.

Rouge got on the scoreboard midway in the opening quarter when the Panthers managed to put together a mid-field drive that culminated with Charlie Antoine's two-yard touchdown run.

Frustrated by their ineptness on offense most of the first half, the Vikings did manage to come back in the third period and were knocking on the door when quarterback Anthony Holt put together a 52-yard drive that was sparked by Jack Kelly 27-yarder.

Unfortunately for the Vikings, that drive fizzled on the Rouge two-yard line.

Holt, who went four of 12 with his passes, saw four catches dropped that had TD

Belleville harrier wins Schoolcraft Invitational

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville senior cross country ace Brian Mockridge picked up where he left off a year ago.

And then some.

The 18-year-old Mockridge, who finished eighth last year at the Class A state finals and was selected as an "All-State" runner, captured his first major invitational of the year Saturday, placing first at the prestigious Schoolcraft Invitational.

Mockridge covered the 5-kilometers in the impressive time of 16:06 to lead the Tigers to a fourth-place finish in a field of 10 teams.

First-year Belleville coach George DeVore was impressed with his runners initial performance.

"Brian said that he was going to win it and was going to run a sub-17 minutes in doing so," DeVore later said. "And he did it. He made a believer out of me."

Belleville finished with 105 team points, leaving the Tigers right smack in the middle of the 10-team pack. Walled Lake Western won the team title with 79 points, followed by Livonia Stevenson (83), Walled Lake Central (85), and Trenton (96).

The Tigers also had the 10th-best runner in the field in Evan Ring, who was clocked in 17:05. Ring also was named to the All-Invitational team. Teammate Kyle Medley finished 27th (17:44) while other Belleville scores that counted included a 30th finish by Craig Hogg (17:53) and Jason Newbern, who was 37th in 18:13.

In the meantime, Belleville coach Sam Vicchy unleashed his 1994 team also at the Schoolcraft Invitational and they responded with a fourth-place (145 points).

Novi cashed in their 29 points for the first-place team trophy. Stevenson was runner-up (48), followed by Lincoln Park (136), Belleville (145) and Walled Lake western (145).

The Tigers placed one runner on the All-Invitational with Tammy Pietrowski, who finished eighth in 20:25. Runningmate Milissa Ackron was 22nd (21:58), followed by Jamie Koren who toured the course in 22:25, good for 29th-place.

Belleville also counted the performances of Amy Pokewinski, who was 41st (23:18) and Katie Ackron, who was 45th (23:41).

Belleville competed in the Ypsilanti Invitational on Tuesday and will travel to New Boston Huron on Saturday for its third invitational of the current season.

Kettering bursts Romulus Eagles' bubble

It looked easy.

First play of the game and the Romulus Eagles lined up at the line of scrimmage. Quarterback Jamal McCain hands off to tailback Eric Nunlee and the speedy Romulus tailback took off for the line, slipped off tackle and runs for a 72 yard touchdown to give the visiting Eagles a quick 6-0 lead against Waterford Kettering Friday night.

Paul Olney then boots the extra point and Romulus, a team that lost to Kettering 18-8 has a quick 7-0 lead.

Alas, it isn't to be for first-year coach Jim Zoltowski and his Eagles. Waterford struck back and tied the score in the second quarter, then erupted for 20 points in the second half to seal a 27-10 victory. Olney's 37-yard field goal with seven seconds left in the game accounted for the final Romulus score.

The loss was the first for Zoltowski as the Romulus head coach.

"It's always disappointing when you lose a game," said Zoltowski, "but we played an excellent Kettering team that is favored to win their league. We played them even more than a half."

Nunlee, who has been outstanding in the Romulus backfield in the first two games, racked up 82 yards in 12 carries to lead the Eagle ballcarriers. McCain had the misfortune of picking out receivers who didn't or couldn't handle his passes. At least seven were on target but were not completed, according to the Romulus coach.

The Romulus QB settled for five of 22 for 56 yards.

The defense had its job cut out for them. On the field most of the second half, the Eagles survived thanks to the efforts of inside linebacker Matt Ladach.

midfield, Robichaud again came back and this time marched 60 yards with tailback Brian Massey scoring from 14 yards out.

Robichaud struck again in the same quarter to make it a 12-0 game as Alexander scored from the 15 after a roll-out that the young QB decided to keep and run with.

But Gallagher, one of the tougher teams in the Catholic League, didn't fold. They came back with a 28-yard TD pass by quarterback Joe Young to split end Ray Curry that made it a 12-6 game and late in the fourth period, Young also scored on a four-yard sneak that tied the game.

Massey was Robichaud's leading rusher. He piled up 69 yards on 15 attempts and one TD. The Bulldogs' defense got exceptional performances from tackle Kenyachta Rucker, and middle linebacker Steve Schumaker.

Although Robichaud has never had any problems with Ecorse in the past - the Bulldogs have won the last 12 games with the Red Raiders, Yauck warns that they can be tough.

"Yes, they (Ecorse) are rebuilding, but this isn't any kind of team we can take lightly," he said.

Rockets

of running plays and a pass failed, the Rockets called up senior kicker Brian Kolb who booted a 25-yard field goal with 4:19 left on the clock.

After the ensuing kickoff, the Hawks again struck. This time quarterback Jake Lawson and split end Kevin Bryant teamed up on a pass-run play that covered 67-yards.

Harrison dominated the second half as tailback Jason Granger came back and scored on runs of 22 and one for the defending conference champs. In the fourth quarter, fullback Eric Davey put in the groundwork for the Rockets only touchdown, a three-yard score by tailback Jay Jackson.

Kolb kicked the extra point.

Jackson led the Rocket ballcarriers with 67 yards on 23 attempts.

In the meantime, Canton also remained winless in their two starts as North rallied from a 7-0 halftime deficit to hand coach Bob Khoenle and the Chiefs a frustrating 10-7 loss.

Canton drew first blood thanks to Len Gardner's 28-yard, first-quarter touchdown run. But the Raiders came back with 10 second-half points, including Ben Sommers' 22-yard field goal midway in the fourth quarter that settled the issue in their favor.

written all over them.

But if the receivers got the flak for their lackadaisical performance, Calhoun had nothing but praise for his defense unit. He singled out Kelly, who counted an incredible 24 total tackles, including 13 solos for his exceptional effort.

The Inkster coach warned that if the offense doesn't come around on Friday "we'll be in for another long afternoon."

"We got to stop Willow Run's running game. They have a Dallas-style attack, and I feel our defense can handle it. But if you don't put points on the board, we will be in trouble."

In eight quarters now, the Vikings have scored only one TD.

Tigers

the game.

Gold, Ian that is, compiled 80 yards in 13 attempts and one TD, while Manuel had four more yards on eight carries.

Belleville takes its show on the road for the first time this season when the Tigers meet Wyandotte Friday night. Wyandotte is coming off of a victory over neighboring Lincoln Park.

LaPointe, on his next opponent, says that Wyandotte has an outstanding fullback in Luke Baxter, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards last year.

"He's (Baxter) is tough, and Wyandotte is an improved ball club," LaPointe said.

Business pitfalls to avoid

When starting a new business, beware of the following pitfalls:

- Don't think that all good ideas will make successful ventures.
- Don't let others tell you what kind of business you should start.
- Don't start a business that does not match your image and personal goals.
- Don't open a "me too" venture.
- Don't fool yourself that food recipes are easy to sell and market.
- Don't overlook business insurance for your equipment and inventory - even if it is a home-based business.
- Don't try to save start-up costs by locating your retail business in a less desirable location.
- Don't conclude that lack of competition means you have a wonderful opportunity. It might mean that there is no market for your product or service.

Courtney Price displays her common sense book about starting business ventures, Courtney Price Answers the Most Asked Questions From Entrepreneurs. ANP photo by Joan Dyer-Zinner

Business is booming across the nation with more than 700,000 new businesses starting up annually.

Clearly, entrepreneurship is on the rise, and more first-time business people are entering the marketplace than ever before, prompting the need for good, common sense advice and strategies for success.

Author Courtney Price has provided a guide to entrepreneurship in her book, Courtney Price Answers the Most Asked Questions From Entrepreneurs, published by McGraw-Hill.

"Just because you've built a better mousetrap doesn't mean that the world will beat a path to your door," Price said. "It doesn't happen. The successful entrepreneur is one who knows how to demonstrate that his mousetrap is superior and then convinces people to buy it. And, the entrepreneur must find his or her niche in the marketplace."

And, to find out just where this niche is and how to make the best use of it, the budding entrepreneurs must assess their abilities, analyze their talents and research their market area.

"The reason that I wrote the book is that so many first-time business owners make fatal mistakes. They don't know who to ask for information or how to research their market," Price said. "My book provides guidelines on how to get information quickly and inexpensively and points out where one can find good sources of information."

Price noted that one's local business librarian can be a major source of information plus the area Chamber of Commerce, Department of Commerce, Small Business Administration and retired business people.

"Many people don't know how to go about getting financing for their businesses," she said, noting that there are Small Business Association-backed loans, financial aid through the Small Business Investment Center, venture capital for equity and investment bankers.

Price noted that she made some errors when she first became a business owner.

"The first time I incorporated a business, it cost me $5,000. The second time, it cost me $50," Price said. "I went to the bookstore and purchased a guide for incorporating. When all of the details were filled in, I went to an attorney to have the document checked."

"Remember the 80/20 rule. Twenty percent of the people do 80 percent of the business, so a business owner should concentrate on his best customers and find out what their needs are," Price said. "For example, a restaurant owner might survey some of his best customers and find that they would like home delivery of his meals and be willing to pay an extra fee for the service, or a dry cleaner might discover that his best customers would appreciate a pick-up and delivery service for a fee."

She said downtown businesses must avoid a "me too" image and distinguish their offerings from those of the malls and supermarkets.

"Old, established retailers must do business differently from the Walmarts and other chains. They can't continue to do what they did in the past," Price said. "Businesses in downtown areas must provide something that the customer can't get in the department stores. Perhaps, a dress shop could also rent formal wear or it could feature alterations or delivery."

Price said there is a "new breed" of entrepreneurs today.

"Some of the new entrepreneurs were people who worked for large companies - the Fortune 500. They have good, managerial skills but have lost their jobs through company mergers and downsizing," Price said. "This is the first time in many years that they are looking for a job and they are finding that those who are younger and have less experience are being hired because their salary demands are not as high. Because their chances of finding jobs are slim, they are deciding to go into business for themselves. These people have capital from their retirement or severance pay and good banking experiences."

The second type of new entrepreneurs are women, who are starting new business at twice or three times the rate of other groups. They want the flexibility of setting their own schedules.

"Two women made their own niche in the electrical repair business by capitalizing on the fact that they know what women want. They base their business on their knowledge of where women want plugs and appliances installed, and they also drive distinctive pink vans," Price said.

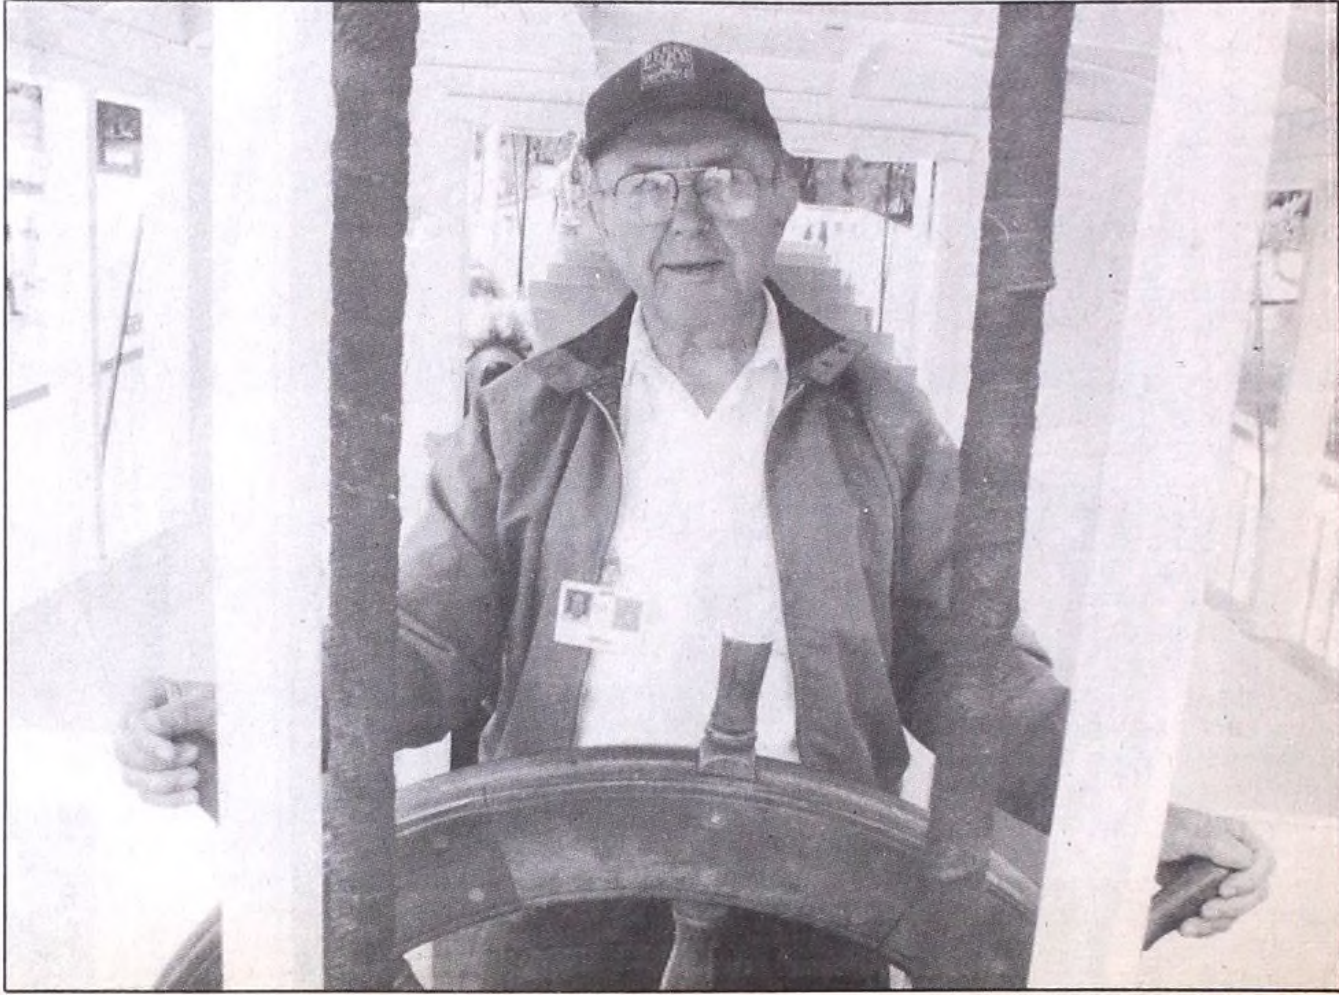

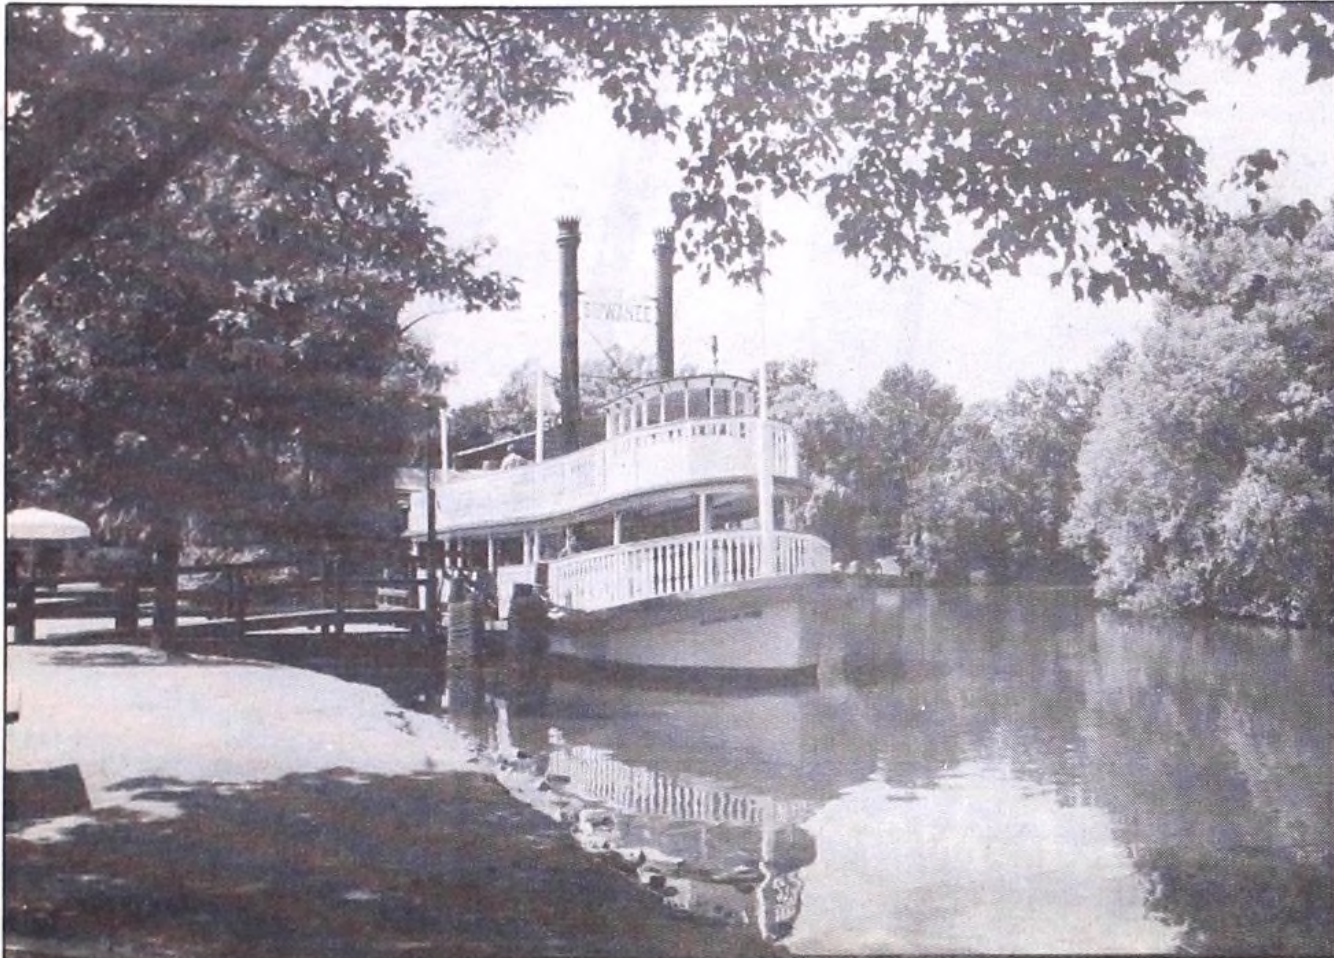

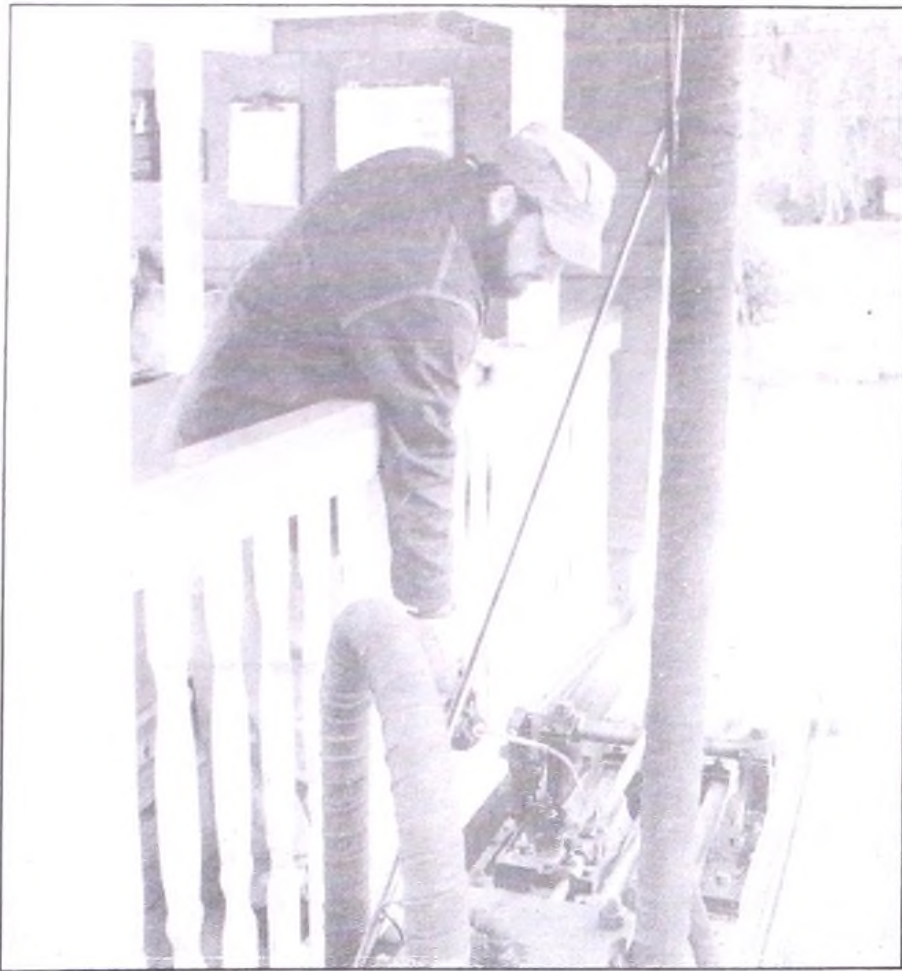

"The so-called Generation X is part of the new breed of entrepreneurs. They don't care about making all of the money in the world, and they are too impatient to wait 15 years to rise through the corporate ranks to the position they want," Price said. "They are getting into computer-related businesses, fast foods and other services."

Man pleads guilty to assault of daughter

After turning himself into police and admitting he sexually assaulted his two young daughters, a 47-year-old Westland man pleaded guilty to reduced charges before Detroit Recorder's Judge Craig Strong. "He walked into the police station and said he wanted to clear his guilty conscience," Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry said.

He walked into the police station and said he wanted to clear his guilty conscience.

- Sgt. Michael Terry

The defendant pleaded to one count of third-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC) and one count of second-degree CSC. He was released after posting a $25,000/10 percent conditional bond which restricts him from contact with his two daughters, 8 and 10. The defendant will return to court Sept. 21 for sentencing. The man was originally charged with six counts of first-degree CSC for having sexual intercourse with the two girls over a four-month period, from November 1992 to February 1993, Terry said. The incidents occurred at the defendant's home on the 3700 block of Cherry Hill Road in Westland. If convicted, the man, whose name is being withheld in an effort to conceal the identity of the victims, faces a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

State encourages 'Year of Family' observance

By RACHAEL LEWIS
Special Writer

The "Year of the Family" is here, and Lt. Governor Connie Binsfeld is promoting observance of it during the last quarter of 1994.

During a speech at a Michigan State Fair reception, Binsfeld spoke of the importance of family and the programs designed to promote it.

In 1989, the United Nations proclaimed that 1994 would be the International Year of the Family and the state of Michigan has conducted special observances of it throughout the first eight months of the year.

The main goals for the Year of the Family are to recognize the challenges of the family, to emphasize the important contributions of the family, to increase the awareness of successes, to have grass-roots celebrations in the communities throughout the state and to spread light on the importance of the family.

The state will recognize communities that do things to enhance the power of the family by putting a sign at the entrance of the community saying that the area is a "family friendly community."

To receive the recognition, Binsfeld said, the community must pass a proclamation to be a family friendly community and have an event or day set aside to encourage its family friendly aspects.

The lieutenant governor suggested that individuals or groups might stage a family reunion or tape the stories of grandparents so that the family history will not be lost.

Objectives of the Michigan International Year of the Family are:

- To teach us to appreciate the unique roles families play in society.
- To make us more aware of the diversity in families - the different customs and challenges of everyday life and the many contributions of loved ones that can become a family.

- To remind us that despite the many differences, families share many common ties.

- To activate citizens, leaders and public servants to work to strengthen families through changes in private and public practices.

- To develop skills and strategies to promote family-friendly policies throughout society.

Binsfeld is the chairperson of the state observance and co-chairpersons are Trudy Duncombe Archer and Michelle Engler, the wife of the governor.

The governor's wife, who is expecting triplets this fall, was scheduled to be the honored guest at the First Lady's Luncheon at the fairgrounds on Aug. 30, but due to the stress of her pregnancy she was unable to attend.

Binsfeld accepted gifts of Teddy bears for the trio of "first children" expected in November, and colors were presented by the Detroit Mounted Police and Macomb County Mounted Division. Frances Brockington, the director of music at Wayne State University, sang the National Anthem.

Actor James Earl Jones will be supporting the idea of family year through commercials and actor Tim Allen of Home Improvements will support the cause on his television show by wearing special T-shirt.

A fund has been set up for children who have been severely abused and neglected. Donations for this fund will go toward children who need special attention and treatment, Binsfeld said. This fund is to give children a chance at childhood so that, hopefully, they will be beneficial and productive members of society when they are adults and not continue the cycle of violence.

Editor's note: Groups or individuals in western Wayne County who are observing the Year of the Family with special events, may contact Joan Dyer-Zimmer at 729-4000 during regular business hours to have their activities and events listed in a future article.

While Fixing The Bridges

BRIDGEFIX is underway! The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is repairing nine bridges and pedestrian walkways over the Lodge (M-10), Ford (I-94) and Fisher (I-75) freeways. When the job is done, you will be traveling over (and under) some of the safest, most secure bridges in Michigan. In the meantime, MDOT wants to keep you out of a fix, while fixing the bridges. Here's how:

- Check your local print news and traffic information stations for updated travel information.
- Expect necessary lane closures during off-peak hours (evenings and weekends).
- Watch for detour signs and please observe the speed limits.
- Look for flyers with additional information about BRIDGEFIX progress.
- Call our toll-free hotline — 1-800-968-9394 — for up-to-the minute information on detours and lane closures.

Fall colors expected to brighten college towns

Some of the most stunning fall colors can be found around Michigan colleges and universities.

Many state campuses were carved out of heavily forested areas where a wide variety of tree species still stand, according to AAA Michigan.

"On the campuses of Central, Western and Michigan State universities, fall color buffs will find about 100 different species of trees," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan travel and member services director. "The grand color show extends to urban campuses as well. Wayne State University is a good example of a city campus heavily populated with ash and maple trees - both of which make for an excellent display."

In addition to the original foliage, trees not necessarily native to the region have been planted on some campuses to add to the diversity of color.

Whether viewing color on a college campus or in the 18 million acres of forests in the state, the 1994 fall display promises to be outstanding, according to Erickson.

"As of mid-August, we've already seen a substantial amount of leaves changing in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula, which indicates we've had the bright, sunny days and cool nights necessary for vibrant color. We've also had an adequate amount of rainfall which has encouraged healthy tree growth and bigger, more vivid leaves," he said.

During the fall color season, which begins in mid-September in the Upper Peninsula and ends in late October in southern Lower Michigan, many businesses report tourist counts rivaling those of summer.

AAA Michigan has created nine maps of colorful state campuses, starting from the far western section of the Upper Peninsula, home of Michigan Technological University in Houghton, to the southeastern corner of the Lower Peninsula where Wayne State and the University of Michigan are located.

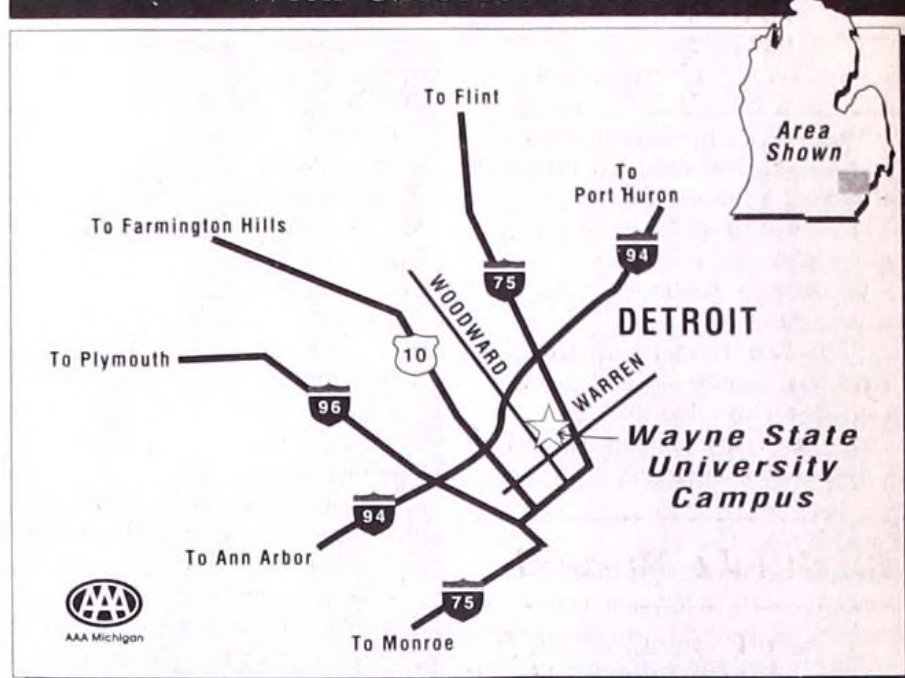

Travelers can call the Michigan Travel Bureau at 800-MI-4-FALL for a report on fall color conditions across the state, updated by AAA Michigan each Thursday through the end of October.

MSU's Green and White Turns Red and Gold During Autumn

The Michigan State University 5,320-acre wooded campus turns to brilliant shades of rust, red and gold in October. A fall picnic or canoe trip along the Red Cedar River shows off some of the 125 species of trees which include maple, oak, ash, locust, Japanese rain tree, spruce, sweet gum, cedar and ginkgo.

Detroit Campus Brims With Colorful Trees

A fall visit to the Wayne State University yields more than educational rewards thanks to the honey locusts, ash and maples that populate the urban campus. In addition to the fantastic fall view, visitors can take in the best of art and literature at the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Detroit Public Library, both located within blocks of the campus.

Strategies outlined for starting business

Author Courtney Price offers the following tips for those planning to start a new business:

- Analyze your personal criteria, interests, knowledge and skills.
- Prove that there is a market for your new idea before embarking on the venture.
- Be aware that starting a new venture takes time, research, seed capital and a sound business plan.
- Conduct a feasibility analysis to determine whether to pursue your business idea before starting a new venture.
- Consider becoming a creative imitator versus trying to find a unique idea for a new venture.
- Study the strengths and weaknesses of potential competitors.
- Look for a market gap or an opportunity to solve a problem for potential customers.
- Become a trend spotter, and take advantage of your "window of opportunity" quickly.
- Write a business plan to prove your venture concept and business strategy.
- Consider the advantages of locating your new venture in a business incubator if location is not important to your business concept.
- Operate your home-based venture as if it were in a separate location, and be professional at all times.
- Carefully research and evaluate potential retail locations by studying the trading area, reviewing customer demographics and traffic patterns, talking to other tenants and contacting a competent commercial real estate company.
- Always negotiate the terms and conditions of a commercial lease for your venture.

Is Your Daytime Fatigue Starting To Effect Your Life?

Don't laugh. He could've been driving a car.

Dozing during a business meeting can be extremely embarrassing. Sleeping through your favorite TV show, disappointing. And nodding off while in the company of friends, a running joke.

But falling asleep while driving is a life-threatening situation, and a major cause of highway accidents.

If you frequently find it difficult to remain alert during the normal course of your day, you may be suffering from a serious -- if not life-threatening -- sleep disorder.

Disorders such as sleep apnea affect your regular, evening sleep patterns causing you to have excessive, debilitating sleepiness during the day. Symptoms include: day-time fatigue, loss of motivation, irritability, reduced effectiveness on the job and the need for excessive amounts of caffeine.

If you're so fatigued that you find it difficult to function normally, the Garden City Hospital Sleep Disorders Center can wake you up. To receive free information or schedule a sleep evaluation, call (313) 458-3330.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS

Kitchen face lift remains top priority on remodeling wish list

If you could start remodeling your kitchen tomorrow, what specific changes and additions would most likely top your wish list?

Well, if you're like most Americans with an older kitchen, you would choose new cabinets with convenient storage features, handsome new countertops and modern new appliances with as many easy-care, self-cleaning features as possible.

And, you would add an island and a pantry too.

"You'll find all these most-wanted features in this contemporary Eurostyle white-on-white kitchen," said Carolyn Verweyst, manager of Whirlpool Corp. Appliance Information Service.

Verweyst said it's easy to understand why consumers rank new appliances among the top four essentials for a kitchen remodeling.

"During the past 20 years, appliances have changed dramatically," Verweyst said. "They have changed not just in styling or size, but in new technology, ease of care, energy efficiency, function and performance."

"Today's busy lifestyles demand appliances that are easy to use and understand, and they offer significant time savings."

Verweyst said today's consumers prefer refrigerator-freezers with no-frost operation and a large storage area with convenient slide-out shelves, bins and baskets. In addition, they want refrigerators that operate quietly and efficiently, with a low monthly energy cost.

Other examples include trash compactors that blend into the decor, handle large volumes of household trash, help keep the kitchen neat and tidy, and are easy to use and clean.

Dishwashers must operate quietly, clean non-prerinsed dishes, conserve water and energy and be so simple to operate that every family member can use it.

"Cooking appliances offer the widest choice and the biggest challenge when it comes to replacing old products," Verweyst said.

White is the most popular color for a kitchen these days. Homeowners also want more counter space and high-tech equipment including computerized ovens and heat-saving dishwashers. ANP Special Photo Verweyst added that separate ovens and cooktops are popular choices for kitchens of today with a wide selection of sizes, fuels, finishes and cooking surfaces to choose from.

Important factors when reviewing the many possibilities include space limitations, cooking styles,

Hiller also likes reds, yellows and oranges for rooms with limited natural light, but recommends neutrals if you live in small quarters where a few rooms have to work very hard and serve many functions.

COLOR FACTORS

It appears that we don't just select colors because of their immediate eye-appeal. Politics and the state of the economy as well as travel and cultural events are just a few of the factors that influence our color selection, according to Hiller.

For instance, when the economy is good, we use bolder colors, and do so exuberantly. And when the economy is down, we use colors much more conservatively.

Uncertainty accompanies the end of any century, and after this one, we jump into a new millennium to boot. That fosters even more uncertainty, so we return to tradition and romanticism in interior design. That means the rich, deep colors of Colonial Williamsburg, the Victorian and Edwardian eras.

But more than anything else, we're presently expressing our environmental consciousness in our color choices. In fact, green is called the great new classic for the 1990s, and earth tones are newly fashionable.

Paint is an important home decorating tool

Did you ever stop to think how often we use color to express our feelings?

We talk about being green with envy, in a black rage or in the pink. And then there's the proverbial "scarlet woman" and all those people with "green thumbs".

We've talked about color this way for centuries, and now psychologists confirm that the emotional impact of colors is serious business. For instance, red actually increases our pulse rate, while cool, Nordic tones are calming.

Green is said to be nurturing and healing, while purple promotes creativity.

Shari Hiller, home fashion expert for Dutch Boy Paints, agrees that color influences almost everything we see, think and feel.

"It produces emotion, creates illusion and evokes mood," Hiller said. "So is it any wonder that paint is the most important decorating tool there is? Take a paint brush to a wall, and the effect is magical."

HOW TO CHOOSE

The problem is figuring out what color to choose. And oddly, even the woman, who'll pick the right color dress without a moment's hesitation, finds color scheming for her home a daunting task.

But then again, decorating products come in thousands of shades. In paints alone, Dutch Boy Paints offers nearly 1,000 colors and Martin-Senour Paints over 2,000.

Like most designers, Hiller says that one's favorite colors are a good starting point.

"They'll probably show up in a favorite scarf, pillow, quilt or painting," Hiller said. "Study the color combinations, and determine why those colors work so well together."

"And, best of all, study nature for color inspiration. For example, if

Geothermal heating pump uses earth's energy to heat and cool

Homeowners interested in saving money on utility bills for heating and cooling need look no further than their own back yards.

A geothermal, or water source system, can harness and enhance the heat from the earth and ground water to heat and cool a home more cost effectively than a conventional system.

While the exact amount of energy savings varies with climate, home and their present comfort system, a typical homeowner can expect to save up to 60 to 70 percent on heating bills and up to 30 to 40 percent on cooling.

"There is increasing demand from homeowners for this environmentally sound, highly efficient option for heating and cooling," said John Manning of Carrier Corp. which recently introduced the WeatherMaker GT Water Source Comfort System.

Manning points to a recent study by the Electric Power Research Institute showing a high degree of customer satisfaction with water source systems compared to conventional systems and to a report by the Environmental Protection Agency acknowledging the energy and environmental benefits of ground source technology.

A Simple Natural Source of Energy

Water source, or geothermal, technology is a simple and natural source of energy, according to Manning. Using a steaming cup of hot chocolate on a cold winter day as an example of how the system works, he explained that the steam is heat transferring from the warm drink to the colder air.

Similarly, in winter, the geothermal heat pump uses a system of underground loops filled with cold liquid to draw heat from the ground. The heat is then enhanced and distributed throughout the house.

In summer, the process is reversed to draw excess heat from the of the heat used to warm the home is free. Two-thirds of the energy comes naturally from the ground. The homeowner pays only for the energy used to move and enhance this natural heat.

Furthermore, because it is enhanced, the water source method of heating provides a heat that feels warmer than that generated by air

See Pump, page 10

Using doors as a design element adds beauty, elegance to any room

Homeowners, designers and decorators are learning that interior doors of a home are an integral part of the total decorating scheme.

"Doors are more than just functional," said Jill Pauza, marketing manager for CraftMaster doors. "They are an important part of the 'look' of the home."

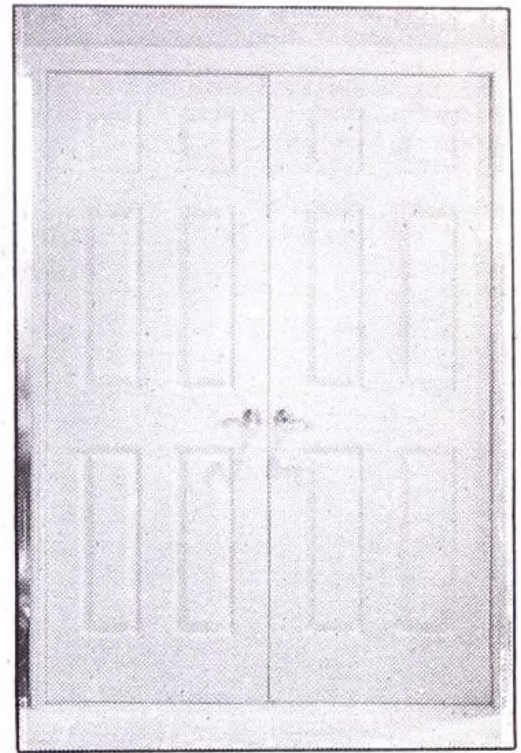

Decorative raised paneled doors enhance the appearance and style of a home, and, at the same time, they increase the home's value. Through every room in the home, doors are highly visible and a reflection of the owner's taste.

"Today's homeowner should choose a door with the same care and design considerations that goes into the purchase of a piece of fine furniture," Pauza said.

Although many of us don't pay any attention to the doors in our homes, there are an average of 15 in every American home. They deserve attention and planning in their selection.

CraftMaster door designs are factory primed. They can be painted to match any color scheme. The doors also have the widest variety of styles in the industry, and they include, two-, three-, four-, and six-panel designs.

For even more elegance, CraftMaster is available in seven-and-eight-foot versions of its two- and six-panel designs. All CraftMaster styles are available from door manufacturers in solid core models to offer the beauty and warmth of solid wood doors at one-third the cost.

Home repairs can be controlled without major difficulty, cost

Many homeowners find home repair difficult work. Yet for some the job is even harder because they can't decide what needs to be done or where to begin.

How can you fix a chronically wet basement, for example, if you don't know where or how the water is coming in?

A professional home inspector may be able to give you the answer. Like a doctor who uses various symptoms to diagnose an illness, a home inspector evaluates all the clues in your home to provide an objective evaluation about the repairs that need to be done.

Yet, unlike a repair contractor who also hopes to get your business, a home inspector who abides by the professional standards of the American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI) cannot bid on doing the repairs and has no vested interest in creating unnecessary work.

There are many types of house problems that home inspectors can help manage, ranging from roof leaks to basement leaks, from inefficient heating systems to inadequate electrical systems, even energy conservation.

It is interesting to note that in a survey of its members, ASHI found that four of the top 10 problems most commonly found are directly related to the damaging effects of water:

- Improper surface grading and drainage was reported as the most frequently found problem, and is responsible for the most common of household maladies: water penetration of the basement or crawlspace.
- Roof leakage, reported by survey participants as the second most common problem, is usually caused by old or damaged shingles or improper flashing, and leads to cosmetic and, sometimes, structural damage.

- Plumbing problems, such as old or incompatible piping materials, faulty fixtures, and improperly vented waste lines, can cause considerable interior damage if not corrected.

- Exterior flaws in a home's windows, doors, and wall surfaces are often responsible for water and air penetration, and usually can be remedied with proper caulking and weather-stripping.

Other problems which home inspectors frequently find are:

- Improper electrical wiring, which includes situations such as insufficient electrical service to the house, inadequate overload protection, and amateur, often dangerous, wiring connections.

- Heating system problems, such as broken or malfunctioning operation controls, blocked chimneys, and unsafe exhaust disposal.

- Pool overall maintenance, demonstrated for example, by cracked, peeling or dirty painted surfaces, crumbling masonry, makeshift wiring or plumbing, and broken fixtures or appliances.

- Structural problems involving foundation walls, floor joints, rafters and window and door headers.

- Poor ventilation, caused by over-sealing the home, which results in excessive interior moisture and the rotting or premature failure of both structural and non-structural components.

ing Accent Tiles. These accents allow you the opportunity to create borders, patterns and other designs for rustic kitchens and inviting foyers.

If it's the naturally-aged stone look that you want, Antiquity, another popular line in American Olean's stone-look assortment, captures rustic charm.

Tiles will vary from tile to tile, as any natural stone-look tile will, and the edges on this tile are scalloped for even more of a hand-crafted look.

Colorado, a soft and subtle rustic stone-look, coordinates with Colorado Peaks, a 6 by 8 glazed wall with a southwestern feel, choose the coordinating Accent Strip. Soon, you'll realize how easy it is to design with ceramic tile.

Designers select pastel colors to create soothing bathroom effect

Is the bath the last area of privacy in America? Designers think so, and they plan their clients' bathrooms accordingly.

So says Joost de Quack, a tile expert, who works extensively with the architects and designers who frequent County Floors showrooms.

He explains that the hectic pace of today's living increases the need for relaxation and privacy, and often the bath is the only room where this is possible.

"In the less frantic past, ladies had their boudoirs, and the men had their studies," Quack said. "But the togetherness of the 1950s swept families into non-stop intimacy, and nowadays so many of us are in crowds most of the day. It's little wonder that the need for personal privacy has become a priority."

What exactly does this mean in terms of design?

Quack says it makes a great difference. Fixtures, surfaces, colors and themes are chosen to create well-being and relaxation.

"This is one of the reasons that designers choose quietly elegant tile and stone surfaces for today's bath," Quack said. "Yes, baths are still luxurious, but the slick spa-type spaces we saw a few years ago are out of favor.

"Instead designers are looking to the classical era, and sometimes even antiquity, for inspiration."

Quack said designers like tile and stone because they are classic materials with the easy-care characteristics required for the bath.

"In addition, these materials can provide a lot of texture and architectural interests, and that's especially important because the preferred colors are decidedly neutral," Quack said.

According to Alexandra Coote, another talented Country Floors designer, the neutral colors chosen for today's baths are warm whites, bone, parchment, caramel, cafe au lait, taupes, sand and grays.

October marks energy awareness month, a time to winterize inside

As the weather gets cooler, many homeowners tend to needs outside their homes such as raking leaves, cleaning and storing lawn furniture, removing awnings and replacing screens with storm windows and doors.

As it is enjoyable to be outside to feel the crisp, cool air, homeowners should not forget that an equal number of winterizing chores need to be undertaken inside the home as well.

For those that prefer to spend time outside with their family or at a ballgame with friends, consider calling an insulation contractor to help you with your winterizing needs.

An insulation contractor can conduct an energy audit and make recommendations on how to reduce heat loss as well as other suggestions for preparing a home for the colder months ahead.

If your home was built before 1985, an energy audit might suggest that you upgrade the insulation in attics, sidewalls and crawlspaces. Homes built before 1965 tend to have R-Values of R-30 or less in the attic and R-11 in the sidewalls.

The latest CABO Model Energy

Manville brand ProPak Batts insulation saves homeowners time. Homeowners can seal the outside of their windows to prevent cold air from entering.

An insulation contractor can recommend the right amount of insulation for your home as well as the right material for the job like CertainTeed's Insul Safe III Fiber Glass Blown-In Insulation.

Insul Safe III, in addition to being an excellent insulating material, is noncombustible and noncorrosive. It offers uniform coverage in hard to reach areas and can be installed in any thickness to achieve the desired R-Value.

R-Value is a measure of an insulation's ability to resist cold or heat. The higher the R-Value, the greater the insulating power.

A blown-in insulation is also ideal for sidewalls as it allows the sidewall to be insulated without total renovation. Typically, when blowing in insulation, a contractor will remove some of the home's siding, drill two holes per standard space, blow insulation into the cavity and replace the siding.

An insulation contractor can also recommend the level of insulation and type of material for insulating a crawlspace as well as make recommendations on insulating water pipes, heaters and heating and cooling ducts.

Code, however, now recommends average levels of R-30 to R-49 in attics, R-19 in sidewalls and R-11 to R-19 in floors.

Synthetic finish gives old stucco walls a whole new appearance

Stucco has a lot of advantages as a home exterior. It is durable, fire-resistant, able to withstand harsh climates and, of course, it looks great.

However, the traditional stucco mixture of cement, sand, lime and water does have its faults, most notably, its susceptibility to cracking when exposed to normal building movement due to thermal expansion and contraction.

Small cracks in stucco exteriors can usually be easily repaired using a stucco patch material. Extensive deterioration, however, presents more of a challenge. The problem lies in the fact that it is very difficult to match the exact color and texture of the existing stucco with any kind of stucco patch material, thus repairing major cracks or holes will often create an undesirable "patch-work" appearance.

SYNTHETIC STUCCO BENEFITS

The good news for homeowners is that recent engineering advances have resulted in the development of synthetic stucco materials, which offer improved flexibility for superior crack resistance. Because synthetic stucco is acrylic-based, instead of just rigid cement, it is able to accommodate normal building movement much better than conventional stucco.

Even better news for homeowners with cement-based stucco exteriors in need of repair, is the fact that U.S. Gypsum Co. has recently tested and approved its synthetic stucco for use as a finish material over deteriorating conventional stucco.

By applying a thin layer of synthetic stucco, base coat, mesh and finish over existing stucco walls, you not only hide cracks and other deterioration, but you also improve the exterior's resistance to cracking for years to come.

Synthetic finishes, such as USG Exterior Textured Finish, are also easier to apply than conventional stucco. They come in a choice of textures-fine, medium and coarse-and a full range of colors.

Since it is difficult to match colors and textures exactly, these kinds of repairs should be limited to only very small areas.

REPAIRING CONVENTIONAL STUCCO

If the cracking is minor, cement-based stucco can be patched using either conventional stucco patch material or a polymer basecoat product. First, thoroughly clean all dirt and loose cement from the crack or hole, then fill the area with patch material, troweling it to match the texture of the existing surface.

Since it is difficult to match colors and textures exactly, these kinds of repairs should be limited to only very small areas.

To recoat an existing stucco wall with synthetic stucco, first clean the existing surface. All dirt and loose materials should be removed and paint or other coatings should be waterblasted.

Fill any small voids or depressions using a polymer-modified portland cement basecoat material, such as USG Exterior Basecoat. Large holes, greater than 1/4-inch deep, should be filled with a conventional portland cement brown coat stucco mix.

Next, apply a layer of basecoat over the entire wall surface. Tightly scratch the material into the existing stucco surface. Embed a reinforcing mesh into the basecoat layer and immediately apply a second layer of basecoat, completing embedding the mesh. The mesh should not be visible through the second layer of basecoat.

Allow the basecoat layer to cure a minimum of 24 hours and then apply the synthetic stucco finish to a minimum 1/16-inch thickness. Float or trowel it to the desired texture.

The beauty of the USG system is that the reinforced basecoat layer reduced the potential for existing cracks to affect the finished synthetic stucco surface, while the flexibility of the finish minimizes the chances for new cracks to develop.

The result is a comparatively economical wall that looks better and will last longer.

you love a deep ocean blue, try to picture the colors that go with it in nature: pristine white clouds, soft corals and tropical greens."

PAINT TRICKS

Hiller recommends warm colors for active areas, such as the family room and kitchen, and restful, cool hues for private spaces and rooms that get strong doses of sunshine.

"Want to keep a good dinner conversation going?" Hills asks. "Then see what scarlet walls can do."

Important factors when reviewing the many possibilities include space limitations, cooking styles, fuel availability, family size and budget limitations.

"When remodeling a kitchen, set your 'wish' priorities and select the products and features that will best meet your family's space, lifestyle and budget needs," Verweyst said.

Pump, from page 4

saving advantage of this method of heating and cooling is the water heater option. In summer, heat extracted in the cooling process goes directly into the home water tank, providing free hot water with the added benefit of improving overall system efficiency.

Quiet and Unobtrusive

"The homeowner barely notices the system," Manning said. "The WeatherMaker GT operates quietly and unobtrusively. All piping is underground and condensing equipment is tucked away in a closet, attic or basement."

Since the system is installed indoors, the compressor and other important components are protected from the elements. The earth's extremely stable temperature and the elimination of the need for defrost cycle translates into stable system operation.

The benefit to the homeowner is less stress on the equipment for lasting durability and reliability.

Mouldings, stencils transform any room in a home within minutes

There is no easier way to transform plain rooms than with mouldings with stenciled borders, but up until now, the high cost of adding carved accents or hiring an artistic painter may well have made you feel resigned to living in a bland box.

The good news is that you no longer need high-priced artisans to save your rooms from the blahs. Now there are "Profile Moulding" and "Instant Stencil", both peel-and-hand products created by Forbo Wallcoverings, and they make it possible to transform a room in less time than it will take to watch a movie.

You don't even have to be accomplished at hanging wallcoverings to manage these clever new products.

Brian Bell, Forbo's home fashion expert, said that as long as you can use a pair of scissors, you can install them.

With Profile Mouldings, you simply peel off backing paper and hang a beautifully sculpted border. It can either be left in its original white-on-ecru form, or it can be painted to match or accent the wall.

It's actually a vinyl wallcovering product, so it's as easy to keep clean as it is to hang it, and it looks beautiful.

It is available in three traditional motifs, each one deeply dimensional to duplicate the carved profiling of expensive mouldings.

The three designs are: Balmoral, a regal motif with a stylized rococo theme; Osborne, which boasts acanthus leaves and swags; and Georgina, which features a classical shell theme. All three are edged with decorated scroll designs.

INSTANT STENCILS

Forbo's Instant Stencil borders are equally easy to handle. They are self-adhesive borders with stencil-look motifs on a transparent vinyl strip. When the backing paper is peeled off, the border adheres to the surface to be decorated, leaving only the effect of brushed-on stenciling visible.

According to Bell, the color of painted walls, sealed wood, wallcoverings, glass, plastic and other flat, non-absorbent surfaces show through the transparent strip to produce fool-proof stencil effects everywhere.

And if you don't get a border completely even the first time, don't worry. Both Instant Stencil and Profile Moulding are created to allow repositioning during application.

The stenciled borders are available in four patterns. There is Ramblin Rose which is offered with coral or deeper red blossoms. It is perfect for country rooms throughout the home.

Peacock Shell is a more formal motif available in peach or coral. It is suitable for a broad range of rooms, from traditional to transitional. Silken Bow is a charming ribbon design in clear pink which is lovely for bedrooms and baths.

Dutch Tulip with garlands of blossoms in yellows and reds, beckon kitchens, hallways and dining rooms. All of the designs feature stylized decorative edges.

Bath, from page 8

"It makes sense," said Coote. "The bath is your first destination of the day. Consider your pre-coffee condition, and you'll definitely want colors that are gentle on the eyes."

"Besides, ceramic tile and stone are such long-lasting materials that timeless colors and designs are advisable. And last, but certainly not least, neutral backgrounds allow the very personal type of decorating that we see in today's best baths."

Coote said that it's not unusual to see cherished antique sideboards, dressers and chairs in these classic bathrooms. Beautiful wall scones, mirrors, prized collections, bookcases, mellow antique rugs and even fireplaces find their way into such baths too.

TEXTURE COUNTS

Since texture is important, designers and homeowners are especially enthusiastic about Country Floors' collections of sculpted art tiles depicting themes from nature, unusual moldings, mosaics, artfully aged marbles, limestone and reclaimed antique French terracotta.

The sculptured tiles are limited to walls and look best when they are combined with fields of color-coordinated plain tiles. Some of the relief tiles, such as those featuring flowering vines and other continuous themes, should be used in rows, while others, including those depicting shells or starfish, could well be interspersed here and there.

Decorative moldings abound at Country Floors showrooms, where display panels show them in multiples in great architectural interest. They are extremely effective separating various fields of tile designs and colors.

According to Coote and Quack, the firm's limestone and aged marble tiles are favorites for baths, not just for floors, but also for shower walls, vanity tops and tub surrounds.

Often, they are combined with marble mosaics used as decorative borders.

Quote of the Week

"I feel wonderful for the parents of the children of Wayne-Westland that they are honoring a great man and giving his non-violent philosophy a chance."

Wayne resident Jim Netter commenting on the Wayne-Westland teachers and the Board of Education agreeing on observing the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. by giving students the day off.

Conference set for area man

An Oct. 7 final conference has been scheduled for a Wayne man charged with three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Geraldine Bledsoe Ford.

Ronald James Holt, 19, allegedly assaulted a Wayne woman Aug. 14, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews. He was arraigned Aug. 15 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold, and a $100,000 cash bond was set.

Drews said the victim knew the defendant. She was the one who called the police with the complaint.

A not-guilty plea was entered during the arraignment. The Aug. 24 examination was waived, and Holt was bound over to Recorder's Court.

If Holt is found guilty of all three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct, he could receive up to life in prison, according to Drews.

2 men charged with assault, intimidation

Two Westland men charged with felonious assault and ethnic intimidation are expected to appear for a final conference Oct. 14 before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Leonard Townsend.

Eric Bolek and Michael Jablonski allegedly chased a Wayne man with a bat Aug. 1 on Michigan Avenue at Sophia Street in Wayne. The two Westland men are white, and the victim is black.

The defendants were allegedly assisted by Westland resident Aaron Croo who is expected to appear for a final conference Oct. 14 before Townsend.

"The altercation took place in front of an apartment building on Michigan Avenue," said Wayne police Sgt. Bob McIntyre. "The three defendants chased the victim and shouted racial comments."

If the three defendants are found guilty of felonious assault and ethnic intimidation, they could receive up to six years in prison.

Interim manager awarded contact

After serving as interim city manager since June, Reid Charles has been named to the permanent post by the Belleville City Council.

Charles, who formerly served as city manager in Monroe, was hired to fill the interim post after former manager Jeff Przygocki committed suicide in early June.

In proposing to name Charles to the manager's post, Mayor Glenn Silvenis said that many ongoing city projects require the services of a permanent city manager.

The council approved a one-year contact at $53,000 for Charles. The salary will be re-evaluated in February, 1995.

Wild West Feuding gangs, cops exchange gunfire in streets

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

'Bad blood' between two cross-town rival Inkster teen groups culminated in a shoot-out during the early morning hours Wednesday.

Although there was an exchange of gun fire and at least one of the suspects shot at an Inkster police officer, no one was reported injured.

When the Inkster officer pulled up in his scout car to investigate, the suspect fired twice at the police vehicle. The officer was not hit.

The alleged gunman was later taken into custody by a Westland officer and handed over to Inkster for prosecution.

Inkster Detective Charles Givens confirmed that the suspect was behind bars, and that he would be asking the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office for a warrant charging the suspect with attempted murder and using a firearm during the commission of a felony.

"We have a suspect in custody," Givens said. "And I plan to present what I have to the prosecutor's office and let them take it from there."

Givens said that the two groups involved in the shooting have been feuding since one of the members, a 17-year-old resident, had been shot in the foot by the rival group. "It looks like someone was trying to even the score."

At approximately 3 a.m., Inkster Patrolman David Rincher was in the vicinity of Avondale and Helen Street when he heard shots on the next street, Woodland. He said turned on southbound Woodland and spotted two males running from the east side of Woodland, exchanging gun fire.

As one of the suspects ran across the street in the path of the patrol vehicle, the suspect turned and fired at Rincher, he reported.

Rincher said he ducked, slipped out from the vehicle and returned the gun fire. Both subjects continued to run from the area.

Later, a Westland police officer, Patrolman Tom Harris, who was in the vicinity, spotted a subject that matched the description of one of the men involved in the shooting and apprehended him.

The suspect was turned over to the Inkster Police Department.

Inkster police are asking anyone with information about the incident to contact them at 563-9856.

Neighbors reveal friendly pranks

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Deputy News Editor

Neighbors are always good for an extra cup of sugar or a friendly chat. But a group of friends in Wayne and Canton have taken their friendship one step further.

At least five area neighbors have been playing house pranks on one another for years. While some of the gestures are "cute", others have been a bit on the "trashy" side, according to Mary Braem and Lori Copland.

"The last thing that happened to my house involved toilet paper and soap all over the windows, and it wasn't even Halloween," said Copland. "They also placed a 'For Sale' sign on my front lawn."

Braem said she has had a similar experience.

"The worst thing that happened to me was on devil's night," Braem said. "My whole house

Police probe bank theft

Two black men escaped with an undetermined amount of money Wednesday after holding up a Standard Federal Bank in Canton Township.

At 2:07 p.m., the men drove a beige Mercury Sable up to the door of the bank, at 44101 Ford Road. One of the men entered the bank and waived a black, semi-automatic handgun as he announced the hold up.

The second man followed him in with a long barreled gun and grabbed the bank manager out of the office.

The initial suspect ordered the tellers to deposit the money into a dark garbage bag as one gunman held the manager hostage. Then the men the jumped into the vehicle and fled the scene.

"It's possible they drove southbound on that side street," said Community Relations Officer Tammie Colling. "When the call came in, we just happened to have an officer in the area and he did not see the suspects."

Both men were wearing gas masks and surgical gloves during the incident, obscuring their identity. Police are looking into the possibility however, that one of the suspects, between 5-feet 6-inches and 5-feet 8-inches, was involved in a carjacking earlier that day in Westland.

Westland police entered a 1991 beige Sable into lien after the registered owner told police it was stolen in the area of Cherry Hill and Wayne.

According to police reports of the incident, a 76-year-old woman was sitting in her vehicle in the Kmart parking lot when the man, approximately 130 pounds and 19 years of age, entered her vehicle through the unlocked passenger door and instructed her to grab her purse and get out of the car.

When she motioned for her car keys, the man reportedly grabbed them from her and repeated the order, police said.

No shots were fired in either incident, said authorities. No one was injured.

As with all federal offenses, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) will be called in to investigate the bank inci-

Testimony revealed in brutal murder

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Murder victim Jane Marie Fray of Westland could have been killed three times over, according to testimony taken during preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court Wednesday.

Fray, who suffered 22 stab wounds, strangulation, a blow to the head and a bite wound to her face, was found dead with a steak knife stuck through her mouth during the early morning hours Aug. 23.

Ricky Alan Amolsch, 30, of Wayne, has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the crime. He is being held without bond pending the continuation of his examination Sept. 29.

According to Wayne County forensic pathologist Dr. Carl Schmidt, the victim received three fatal blows: a stab wound to the heart, strangulation and a fatal blow to head. She was also stabbed 10 times in the neck, two times in the left temple, and once behind the ear. However, the victim did not suffer any wounds to her arms or hands, Schmidt testified.

According to evidence, the bite occurred at or shortly before the woman's demise and the strangulation with an instrument, such as a cord, occurred early on in the assault.

Schmidt said the single-edged, six-inch blade knife which was taken from the victim's mouth is consistent with the stab wounds.

During examination, Wayne County Chief forensic dentist Alan Warnick said he compared the examination of the bite marks on the body and a dental examination of Amolsch's teeth.

"The marks found are highly consistent with the dentition of Mr. Amolsch," Warnick said.

However, defense attorney Richard Lustig questioned the type of evaluation performed and was granted an adjournment by 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos to examine the documentation.

The victim's next door neighbor, Anthony Walker, testified that he arrived home around 1:30 a.m. Aug. 23 and saw Amolsch's minivan in Fray's driveway. He went to bed and was awakened by his wife who heard a loud argument at the victim's home around 5 a.m. that morning.

"I heard Janie's voice. She was angry, loud, which is unusual," Walker testified.

Walker went next door to investigate and just as he approached to knock on the woman's trailer side door he heard "thumping noises."

"It was like someone was bouncing off a wall. I knocked and Janie was saying, 'No, don't. Stop,'" Walker testified, adding that after the knock there was "total, immediate silence."

He then went to the front door and knocked again, but still receiving no response, he went home.

Security guard shot at area adult theater

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A 38-year-old security guard who strolled into the parking lot of an adult movie house in Inkster during the early morning hours on Wednesday to investigate a suspicious person was greeted with a volley of bullets.

James Williams, who is employed as a guard at the Melody Theatre, located in the 28000 block of Michigan Avenue, was shot at least three times, the bullets striking the victim in the abdomen and in the groin area.

Williams was rushed to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, then transferred to a second hospital, for treatment.

Hospital officials said that Williams "is in good condition" and is expected to recover from the wounds.

Melody Theatre employees were ordered not to discuss the shooting with the media.

"We know that Mr. Williams will be all right, but we can't talk to you," said a male employee.

According to Inkster Detective John McGruder, Williams was walking in the direction of the armed robbery and one of the suspects, apparently surprised by the intervention, opened up with a semi-automatic weapon.

"The crooks were in the process of robbing a man and his girlfriend when Mr. Williams entered the parking lot," McGruder said. "Those guys shot him and took off."

McGruder said that there are no suspects at this time.

The robbery victims told Inkster police that they had left the movie house and were walking toward their vehicle when the two men approached them. One of them demanded money, and when the man handed them a dollar, the robber said: "That's not enough."

The robber then proceeded to strip the couple of their jewelry, but the woman had difficulty taking off her brace-

School board eliminates busing to balance budget

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

The elimination of secondary busing was just one of the cuts made by the Wayne-Westland Board of Education in an attempt to balance a budget which is in a $1.9 million deficit.

Because state law prevents the district from collecting any funds from a successful fall millage election this year, board members voted to rescind the motion for a previously approved election and began balancing their budget Monday night.

Other cuts made by the Board of Education besides the transportation cuts which become effective Oct. 24, include the elimination of secondary parking lot security, approximately six vocational education teaching assistants, the adult education evening program, a $50,000 reduction in the building supplies, 1.5 central office receptionist positions and the administrative positions of coordinator of adult and community education and a curriculum director.

The cuts made add up to $1.2 million, leaving the district approximately $750,000 in debt. Board members agreed to wait for the fourth Friday pupil count, which will determine the amount of state funding per pupil they will receive, before making any further cuts.

The expected pupil count is 15,500 and as of the first Friday the count was short approximately 200 students. However, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas added, "That's not unusual. The population will increase each week."

The majority of board members could not agree on the separate cuts of transportation, 1.5 central office receptionists and the remainder of cuts, so the board voted on each of the three major issues. With Board member Francis Winter absent, the remaining board members supported cutting the administrative positions, adult education, security, vocational assistants and building supplies, saving the district $435,000.

Board Vice President Richard LeBlanc was against the central office cuts, which saved the district $45,000, and Board Treasurer Patricia Brown voted against the secondary transportation cuts which cut approximately $750,000 from the budget.

Several other cost cutting proposals were made, but all failed for a lack of majority support.

Thomas said his job will now be to notify the state that the board has failed to balance the district's budget, but plans to do so after receiving the fourth Friday count.

According to Thomas, he doesn't expect the state to step in and take control of the budget balancing process unless the board fails to cut the remaining $750,000 following the Nov. 1 student count.

"The board must balance the budget or the state will come in after Nov. 1," Thomas said.

The transportation cuts will effect students who are currently taking buses to school and transportation workers who will be laid off as a result of the cuts.

The vocational education program will also suffer "tremendously," according to Greg Baracy, assistant superintendent to general administration.

"Last year they cut about half of them," Baracy said, adding that the six positions would amount to nearly another half of the group.

"There's a certain amount of supervision necessary in teaching these types of programs. Some programs can't survive without teaching assistants," Baracy said.

Baracy added that the evening adult education program would effect some 200 students who, more than likely, would be unable to attend classes during the day.

"We can try to transfer them into a day program, however, we know in many cases it's not possible," Baracy said.

Board Secretary Vicki Welty said she would like to take the time between cuts to lobby for the change of a portion of the state school code which denies districts the right to charge for transportation services.

"We got money for it (from the state) before. That's not what's happening today. I would like the board to mount a campaign to change the (state) school code," Welty said.

Welty said charging parents a nominal fee for transportation would be better than eliminating it altogether and having a private service come in and charge them.

"It doesn't make sense to lay off bus drivers and then hire a private company and (have parents) pay them," Welty said, adding that concerned citizens and board members should write state legislators about the idea. "I'd like each of you to think about that. This is something that we can do."

Brown said she would rather go after state funding for transportation rather than seeking a method to charge for it.

"My concern is there will always be kids that can't afford to pay," Brown said.

The deficit which was at $1.3 million a few weeks ago, increased $600,000 with the release of special education program charge backs from Wayne County and the addition of district-funded breakfast programs at a cost of $50,000.

Thomas recommended that board members rescind a recent resolution to conduct a millage election this fall asking for 3 mills over a two-year period because any gain from that election could not be used until the 1995-96 school year. Instead, Thomas said, he plans to recommend the board seek a millage increase in the spring of 1995.

"We can't levy any taxes this school year. The new state law doesn't allow us," Thomas said.

According to Thomas, since the district did not ask for a millage increase in 1994, state law does not permit any millage increase for this school year. Without a millage passage this year, Thomas said at an earlier meeting, any program cuts made will not be brought back in the near future.

"The cuts can't be restored even if a millage passes next year. We're looking at this for a few years," Thomas said.

Several board members and Thomas alike blame the financial disaster on past millage failures.

Fred Elezi and his wife, Alison, were the neighbors in this friendly group who were recently hit by a very colorful prank.

"We placed pink flamingos all over their front lawn," Copland said. "It's kind of feminine and cute. We thought Fred would get a good laugh." What the group didn't realize was that the company they hired to fulfill the dirty deed arrived at the house too early, in broad daylight, and Elezi caught the pranksters in the act.

"We called the company and asked them to place the flamingos at night so they couldn't see what was going on," Braem said. "Someone didn't get that message. The company said they would give us a discount on the next job we order so it worked out."

When will the next prank take place? None of the neighbors are talking, but they all are on the lookout. After all, isn't that what friends are for.

MURDER

"I hate to admit it, but I was embarrassed and I thought they were embarrassed because they knew we heard the fight," Walker said just before he broke down crying and had to be temporarily excused from the courtroom.

Later that morning, Walker's wife called the victim a few times and receiving no response, sent her husband over to the home again. Walker and the victim's mother discovered the 34-year-old woman's bloodied body in the entrance of the victim's trailer home bedroom, located at 609 Cashew Street in the Westland Meadows Trailer Park, according to testimony.

"I touched the body. I tried to feel her neck ... but I couldn't even feel if she was cold because of the crusted blood," Walker testified.

The 6-foot 2-inch tall, 200-pound defendant had been dating the victim approximately four months prior to the stabbing and had no previous problems, according to police.

A neighbor of the accused, who wished not to be identified, said Amolsch is divorced and was caring for his two children at his home, located on the 4600 block of Chestnut Street in Wayne, prior to his arrest.

The resident said the defendant and Fray had been dating during the year, but Fray had not visited Amolsch's home for several months. However, during the afternoon hours of Aug. 21, the neighbor said, a Jeep resembling the automobile owned by the victim was parked outside the defendant's home.

"She hasn't been over there in months, but the Sunday before (her death) she was over there," the neighbor reported.

The witness added that Amolsch was at his home around 9:45 p.m. the evening prior to the murder.

Amolsch is a longtime employee of General Motors and has no previous criminal history.

Upper Peninsula offers scenic venues

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne-Westland Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas did something he and his wife always wanted to do this summer - they toured the Upper Peninsula.

"Our intent was to go around the U.P. (Upper Peninsula). We've always talked about driving it and never did," Thomas said.

The couple left on the one-week tour which began by crossing the Mackinac Bridge and arriving at their first destination in Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore.

The next stop heading northwest was Grand Marais where Thomas and his wife, Donna, traveled down an old log road through wooded terrain behind Pictured Rocks.

In Munising, the two caught a boat to view the scenic colored rocks up close traveling along the shoreline.

"There are some things in nature you could never copy," Thomas said. "The chemicals in the rocks make the colors look like pictures."

On the second day, the

Thomas' traveled to Marquette and visited Northern Michigan University and toured the town where they visited a park with deer, raccoon and other wild animals, Thomas said.

From there the two drove to Lake Superior where an icy time was had by both who took a dip in the chilly waters.

By the third day, they were headed westward toward the Keweenaw Peninsula near Copper Harbor. Along the way, they stopped at the twin cities of Houghton and Hancock, and visited Michigan Technological University.

"We stayed at a mountain lodge out in Copper Harbor," Thomas said, adding that it was so cool at night that he and his wife even started a fire to keep warm.

The two also really enjoyed the small town of Copper Harbor where, Thomas reported, some 200 inches of snow falls annually and in 1989 some 400 inches covered the town. During their stay, the couple even ran into an old teaching friend who moved to the scenic location after his retirement.

"There's not a lot of people that live there year round," however, Thomas added that the ones that do stay all year, "love living up there."

While there, they stopped to visit the historical Fort Wilkins where the couple got a first hand look at how soldiers used to rough it during the winter months.

The pair then drove across the top of mountains, stopping to see the entire Peninsula. There they spent a romantic evening watching the sunset and enjoyed dinner at a beautiful restaurant on the water.

By the fourth day, the two headed to the tip of Keweenaw, the highest point in the Upper Peninsula, where they visited Eagle Harbor and Eagle River.

"There was a little bakery run by monks that had the most fantastic muffins and cookies," Thomas added.

Calumet was the next stop and then the two headed south stopping at Iron Mountain.

"We went through the iron mines. You had to wear a hard hat and rain jacket because water drips inside the caves," Thomas said, adding that the couple took a train through the mines and watched how miners used to work in the past, hammering up to a half day to make a single hole for blasting.

During their visit, Thomas said, he thought his watch stopped when the time was reported on the car radio. He later realized the time zone was an hour different in that area.

The Thomas' made stops in Escanaba and Manistique and then headed back across the Mackinac Bridge to Charlevoix where they dined at a restaurant called Pete and Mickey's.

Belleville residents go north for holidays

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

When employees of a travel agency want to get away from it all, where in the state do they go?

Gary Sampson, owner of Adventure Travel of Belleville, heads for the Upper Peninsula, while his employees choose other northern sites in the state. Judy Dent vacations in Traverse City, Bev Powell favors East Lewiston and Bea Easton enjoys trips to Muskegon.

For Belleville area resident Jimmy Stewart, Manistee is the place to be, and Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Secretary Janet Millard favors the Upper Peninsula, next to Belleville, of course.

Mackinac Island is the choice for a relaxing vacation away from telephones and the hustle and bustle of urban life for Mary Lou Rocha of Van Buren Township.

"Anywhere as long as I'm on the boat," said Peggy Cranham who enjoys boating with her husband, Roland.

East Tawas on the shore of Lake Huron is the favorite Michigan vacation spot for George and Mernie Watts of Van Buren Township.

Gloria Dougherty named her home town, Manistique, in the Upper Peninsula as her favorite vacation site in Michigan. Harold Kasten and his wife, Maria, also enjoy vacationing in Manistique.

Manistee in the northern Lower Peninsula is a favorite vacation spot for Peggy Willis.

"I also like St. Ignace. I enjoy vacationing somewhere that is a change of pace from our busy schedules during the rest of the year," Kasten said.

"Oscoda and Harrison" were named as favorite vacation spots by Max Barber of Sumpter Township, who once owned cottages in the area.

Van Buren Township resident Don Truran named Ludington on Lake Michigan as his favorite vacation site in Michigan.

Island draws seniors

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Mackinac Island remains one of the top tourist attractions in the state for Romulus senior citizens, Marilyn Hoffer, director of the Romulus Senior Center, revealed last week.

The senior citizens travel to many locations throughout the Midwest and Michigan, Hoffer said, but one of the quickest sign-ups is always the three-day Mackinac Island trip in the fall.

"Our seniors enjoy the exercise events there including the early morning historical walks, horse back riding, cycling and evening dancing periods," she said.

Others enjoy the laid back relaxation offered by horse-drawn carriage rides, 100 porch rocking chairs "which are usually always filled", movies, bingo games and the high tea social times.

"The husband-wife combos and other couples also enjoy the atmosphere offered them at the century-old Grand Hotel, the courteous service and splendid food provided by the staff there," Hoffer said.

October seems to be senior citizen appreciation time at Mackinac Island and "our residents admit that it is the ideal time of year to enjoy the island's historical treasures," she concluded.

Inkster residents name top sites

By TOM MOORADIAN

When Inkster residents take a break from their daily routines, they choose a variety of Michigan communities for day-long or weekend trips and week-long vacations.

Community activist Curtis Long named Kalamazoo as his favorite vacation site in Michigan.

"I enjoy Kalamazoo because of the history there - the Underground Railroad, Sojourner Truth (memorial) and the museums in the area," Long said.

"Up north," said Dozier when asked about his favorite vacation site. "The Sault Ste. Marie area - it's wonderful at any time of the year."

"You can't beat Grand Haven," said Inkster Police Chief Terry Colwell.

"Ann Arbor, especially on a fall afternoon on Saturday watching the Wolverines play football in U-M Stadium," said Garnett Hegeman, magistrate of the 22nd District Court.

Being surrounded by water on all sides offers a variety of summer destinations for a Canton Township employee.

Information coordinator Casey Hans is completely satisfied spending a vacation in a tent near one of the many beaches lining the Great Lakes - the more remote, the better.

"It's nice to sit on the beach and look out at nothing but the water," she said. "It's a good opportunity to think or just empty your mind."

Hans, accompanied by her husband, Larry, has traveled around the state visiting each of the lakes, sometimes in one summer. The pair packs up their little Miata (a two-seater) with sleeping bags, a tent and cooking gear.

"I started going camping in my late teens with friends, but I did more after I met my husband, who is an avid camper," said Hans, "and because I like the Great Lakes so much, we try to visit spots around here each summer."

Favorite spots from the past summer include: Straights

State Park, in St. Ignace near Mackinac Island, and Hoeft State Park in Roger City.

"We went to Hoeft State Park during the meteor showers in August," said the nature lover. "We got up and went down to the beach to see the showers, but the neat thing is other people were doing it too."

Camping offers a broad range of opportunities, said the woman. Not only a cost-saver (compared to the high prices of hotel rooms), people can bring their lodging where ever they go, even if they visit the coldest body of water around.

"Each lake has its own personality," she said, "but Lake Superior is my favorite. It's so far north that is is beautiful, but cold. You can't swim in it."

For novice campers, Hans offers a few tips: always pack light, because it will be more enjoyable to set up; never take food in the tent, because it could attract all types of animals; and try to make yourself comfortable, even if it means bringing an air mattress to put under the sleeping bag.

Nearby sites lure visitors

A few residents and business officials in Wayne found that they didn't have to travel far this summer to find their vacation paradise.

Pat Dunn, marketing manager for Westchester Towers in Wayne, said she went to Port Austin and enjoyed shopping and the lake.

"I stayed at a cottage on the lake," Dunn said. "We went antiquing and enjoyed some of the popular restaurants up there like The Garfield House and the Farm. We also traveled a bit to neighboring communities."

Joyce Pandel from McDonald's in Wayne said she spent some time in Ypsilanti camping and relaxing.

"We didn't go too far, but we enjoyed ourselves," Pandel said. "We got a trailer and just relaxed."

Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews cruised on his Freedom 30 sailboat around Lake Erie.

"My wife and I spent a few days relaxing on the lake and we also went to Canada," Drews said.

Big time boxing comes to Inkster

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

He may not sting like a bee like the immortal Muhammad Ali, formerly Cassius Clay, or his name may not yet become as familiar as the Brown Bomber of Detroit - the incomparable Joe Louis, but those who have watched Demetrius Jenkins blast his opponents out of a boxing ring have labeled him dynamite.

That name has stuck.

And Demetrius "Dynamite" Jenkins, with his eye on the world title, will bring his show to town, the main event in a dramatic boxing program that will also feature Tarick Salmaci, the Arabian Prince, at the Pavilion Entertainment Center in Inkster.

Big time boxing will come to Inkster, starting at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 21. The program has been put together by Jam Boxing Productions and producer Kevin Franklin.

"In Demetrius Jenkins you have one of the finest young boxing talents around," said Franklin. "He is a world-class boxer who has a commitment to prove he is the best in the world."

Franklin says that the area will support outstanding talent because Inkster and the area has developed such world class athletes as Johnny Long, Terry Mills, Grant Long, and Tyrone Wheatley.

"This area is definitely a sports-minded one and we know there will be a full-house when Demetrius enters the ring."

Ringside tickets are $25 and general admission is $12. Boxing patrons may use their V.I.P. card and receive $2 off the general admission tickets and $4 off the ringside.

The Pavilion is located at 3415 Middlebelt Road, across from Inkster High School.
